West Split On Meeting Red Move

WASHINGTON (AP)—The four Western Allies continued Wednesday to search for a common ground on which to meet the Communist closing of the border between East and West Berlin.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany, forming what is generally called the working group, met for the third time in as many days to discuss possible solutions. No results were reported and, in fact, as one diplomatic informant put it, it was agreed to disagree on what if any counter-measures the West should take. The working group is a planning committee set up in 1958 to help the foreign ministers shape Allied policy on Germany and Berlin.

In other developments, President Kennedy met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a White House breakfast presumably to review the Berlin crisis.

The White House said there will be no comment on a letter from Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin telling Kennedy that, "Berlin expects more than words, it expects political action." The White House said the letter has not yet been received.

State Department spokesman Lincoln White said a new Western protest note to the Soviet government on the closing of the East Berlin border "is under active consideration." The note, officials added, likely will be dispatched within 24 or 48 hours.

The working group met under the chairmanship of Foy D. Ohler, the State Department's assistant secretary for European affairs, who is under instruction to devote his entire time to the German crisis.

Ambassador Sir Harold Caccia represented the United Kingdom, Claude Lebel, embassy minister, was present for France, and Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe spoke for West Germany.

British and French delegates leaving the conference declined comment. Grewe, however, conceded in response to a reporter's question that there is a "certain disappointment" in Germany over what the Germans consider the West's failure to act immediately and effectively against the Communist blockade of refugees seeking freedom in West Berlin.

But Adenauer Urges Patience

BERLIN (AP)—Angry West Berliners voiced direct personal appeals to President Kennedy Wednesday to take more forceful action against the Communists for throwing up barricades across the heart of this old capital.

The appeals were voiced both by Mayor Willy Brandt in a letter to Kennedy and by placards at a protest rally by 200,000 West Berliners in front of the city hall.

The tone of the Berlin rally contrasted with a speech in Bonn by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. He urged the German people to be patient and not cause a break in West German unity with its Western Allies.

Adenauer said that he did not believe the present Berlin crisis would lead to war, but that the real danger lay in Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threats to sign a separate peace treaty with the Communist East German regime.

Allies Still React

He said the Western Allies "will react with all sharpness when the real crisis occurs."

Despite the barricades and troops, some refugees still managed to get through. West Berlin police reported the Communists opened rifle fire on two persons in an East Berlin car which broke through the Red fences.

Meanwhile, Communists extended their travel bans to their citizens trying to cross the West German border, 110 miles west of this city, border guards reported.

Don't Push Us, Khrush Told By U.S.

By JAMES H. OTTOWAY JR.

WASHINGTON — Our government is apparently not planning retaliation now for closing of the Berlin border by Communist troops.

High administration officials, speaking to newsmen Monday and Tuesday, at a background session on foreign policy, were anxious to avoid actions now which might provoke war over Berlin.

One high-ranking speaker pointed out that the East German Communists have not yet threatened Western access to West or East Berlin.

He cited three fundamental issues in Berlin and hinted—without using the words, war, military action or retaliation—that we would fight for them if they could not be secured by negotiation.

Those issues are: (1) Our access to West Berlin. (2) Our presence in West Berlin, including the presence of Allied troops. (3) The ability of that city to live.

These points were called "the heart of the matter."

The last issue was threatened by the Communists Tuesday night when they announced that they would blockade Berlin as they did in 1948-49 if economic sanctions were applied against East Germany or Warsaw Pact countries.

Such economic sanctions were suggested Tuesday by Konrad Adenauer of West Germany and are being considered by Western diplomats in Washington.

What about negotiations? The same high-ranking speaker said, "We hope our vital interests can be protected by peaceful means. Negotiations will and should take place before this crisis reaches a boiling point."

He warned the newsmen and the public against showing our hand before we play it.

If we detail our first position as well as our fallback position before negotiations, our fallback position automatically becomes our starting position.

This explains why the Allied foreign ministers' meeting in Paris Aug. 5 and 6 did not make plans for possible negotiations.

Such plans "have a way of leaking out," according to the speaker. Such a policy of silence is frustrating to newsmen here but is standard procedure in the Russian or any other dictatorship.

Still, the question remains. How and when will we act? Speakers from the State Department, the Pentagon, and the White House at this briefing session gave the definite impression that we will act to protect those three vital interests.

"We must get it across to the dictator that if he pushes there is trouble. We must get this signal across to Mr. Khrushchev," said one high official.

What if Mr. Khrushchev pushes us on these vital issues? Another speaker made two points about the possibility of war and the use of nuclear weapons.

(1) The President has said that nuclear weapons will be used if we are attacked by nuclear weapons or if we are attacked by conventional forces with which we cannot cope.

(2) But we do not propose to spell out for the enemy exactly how we will respond to specific acts in Berlin.

Government speakers left this impression—the game is definitely getting more tense, we are playing to win but we are not going to show our cards before we play them.

would lead to war, but that the real danger lay in Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threats to sign a separate peace treaty with the Communist East German regime.

Allies Still React

He said the Western Allies "will react with all sharpness when the real crisis occurs."

Despite the barricades and troops, some refugees still managed to get through. West Berlin police reported the Communists opened rifle fire on two persons in an East Berlin car which broke through the Red fences.

Meanwhile, Communists extended their travel bans to their citizens trying to cross the West German border, 110 miles west of this city, border guards reported.

West Berliners are angered by failure of the Western powers to do more than protest against the blockade of barbed wire, armor and machine guns that has stopped East German refugees and East Berlin commuters from crossing into West Berlin, since Sunday. West Berlin motorists without special permits also are sealed out of East Berlin.

While the West Berliners showed their anger at the big rally, one Western protest against harassment of the East Berliners was brushed off by the Soviet commandant, Col. Andrei I. Solovoyev. He told the Western military commanders their complaint of two weeks ago "cannot be taken seriously." He so far has ignored their more recent complaint about the barricades.

Brandt, in an emotional, shouting speech at the rally declared, "If the Communists are not stopped at the Brandenburg Gate they will not be stopped at the Rhine."

He said he has sent a letter to President Kennedy telling him frankly that, "Berlin expects more than words, it expects political action."

He said—without naming anybody—that he wanted "high Western representatives" to come to Berlin to see the situation for themselves. He demanded that a complaint be made in the United Nations.

The White House said the letter had not been received and there would be no comment.

German Slogans

The massed crowd waved banners with such slogans as: "Rather dead than Red." "Enough protests, let's act." "Quiet please, a lot of people are still asleep." "Betrayal by the West," and, "Paper protests won't stop tanks."

There were calls for an economic boycott of the Communists and free elections in East Germany.

Noting the temper of the crowd, Brandt warned: "Whatever you do, don't shoot at your countrymen."

As he spoke, West German police closed off roads leading to the Brandenburg Gate at the barricaded border in case any steamrolled West Berliners should take it into their heads to rush there. The gate, main crossing point between East and West Berlin, has been closed with barbed wire barricades backed up by a grim wall of militiamen and armed cops.

Brandt said the Soviet Union was using Berlin in an effort to split the Western powers. Referring to the East German party boss, Walter Ulbricht, he said, the Russians "loosened the leash a little on their dog Ulbricht and allowed him to send tanks into Berlin. The tracks of those tanks churned up the agreements on the four-power status of Berlin."

Enlistments Extended, Reserve Units Alerted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States continued its military buildup against Communist threats Wednesday by stretching out Army enlistments and alerting Reserve units.

Announcing a series of actions that could give the Army a total strength of 384,000 by next June 30, Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. said:

"I should like to emphasize that the steps are not merely crash measures designed to meet the Berlin crisis, but are a part of the buildup in our military strength to meet the worldwide threat."

The Army's present strength is 358,600. It has been authorized to go up to 1,008,000 by next June 30.

Topping the list of actions was Stahr's announcement that 84,000 enlisted men whose normal terms would expire between Oct. 1 and service for periods up to four next June 30 are being held in service for periods up to four months.

Earlier Steps

Similar action already has been taken by the Air Force and the Navy. The Air Force announced Tuesday it is adding about 28,000 men to its strength through voluntary and involuntary extensions of service.

The Navy announced on Monday it will retain 26,800 men whose service otherwise would run out by next June 30.

This is the first buildup of U.S. military manpower since the Korean War ended in 1953.

Stahr said 113 Army National Guard and Reserve units are being alerted for possible call to duty. They include combat, combat support and port operational organizations with a total of 23,626 men.

No figures were given on the size of individual units. Asked what he thought of the chances of all 113 units being called up, Stahr said this would depend on the world situation.

Seranton School Honors Hodges

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges was honored Wednesday as the "home study man of the year."

The award was made by International Correspondence Schools of Seranton, Pa., where Hodges once subscribed to a course in shorthand.

Lawrence's fiscal aides said the exemptions will cost nothing in actual revenue because the taxes had been in litigation since their enactment in 1956.

Exemptions on the sales, capital stock and franchise levies would have provided a potential $1 to $2 million annually.

Even the double vote apparently was staged. Members of the press gallery knew what was up hours before the last act was played at the end of an 11½-hour session.

Elimination of the 2 per cent commission for tax collections will yield an estimated $6.5 million for the remainder of the current 13-month fiscal period. The acceleration feature will bring in some $28.5 million.

Two Mishaps Investigated

STATE police from Mount Pocono Barracks investigated two accidents last night.

The first mishap occurred at 12:30 a.m., one mile south of Mount Pocono on Route 611. The drivers were Edward T. Lucas, 21, of Scranton, and Jessie L. Cottesfeld, 68, New York City.

Lucas struck the Cottesfeld vehicle in the rear when he attempted to pass the car. Damage to the Lucas car was $300 and to the Cottesfeld vehicle $800.

The second happened at 7:55 a.m. about four miles north of Mount Pocono.

The drivers were Walter E. Froehlich, 40, of Patterson, N.J., and Billy Harding Rodger, 40, Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

Rodger's car struck the Froehlich vehicle as he attempted to pass it.

Mrs. Martha Froehlich received a sprained ankle.

Damage to the Rogers car was $800 and to the Froehlich vehicle $700.

Both amendments were sponsored by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., a long-time foreign aid critic.

Ben Gurion Proclaims Victory

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—The dominant Mapai party of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, blamed for many of Israel's growing pains, lost strength in Parliament Wednesday but will retain a controlling grip on the next government.

Nearly complete returns from Tuesday's election for a fifth Knesset—Parliament—gave the Mapai party 42 deputies in the 120-member House, a loss of five seats.

Ben-Gurion's position as leader of the majority faction automatically assures that President Ishak Ben-Zvi will charge him with forming the new government.

JFK Dealt Defeat On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House gave President Kennedy a major rebuff Wednesday by wiping out the long-range loan feature of his foreign aid bill.

The White House had no comment but Kennedy charted a vigorous overnight effort to reverse the 197-185 informal tally count.

The action was tentative and could be reversed Thursday. Moreover, if the Senate stands fast on Kennedy's plan for five-year authority to make low-interest development loans for up to 50 years to fledgling nations, the program still could be salvaged—at least in part—in a Senate-House conference.

But it was clear Kennedy's ambitious overseas help program was in deep trouble. The Senate slashed over $1 billion of Kennedy's over-all proposals, without however, tampering so far with the five-year length of the proposed loan power.

The House vote came after administration forces moved to trim the five-year lending authority to three years. This was apparently done with the assent of Speaker Sam Rayburn in what proved to be a fruitless effort to head off oncoming defeat.

India-born Rep. D. S. Saund, D-Calif., sponsored the House move to drop the long-range loan plan. Under his tentatively adopted amendment, loan authority for the administration would be shaved to a single year with a $1.2-billion ceiling. That is about what Kennedy wanted for a first-year installment.

Saund's amendment was heavily supported by Republicans and conservative Democrats. Its adoption knocked out the compromise and the administration had resigned.

Kennedy wants congressional sanction to grant $4.3 billion in aid this year—plus power to lend $8.8 billion over the next five years, at little or no interest, to help develop just-emerging nations.

In the Senate, amendments were adopted to cut $800 million off the five-year development loan fund and to slash by $250 million with $1.8 billion Kennedy proposed as part of this year's grant for foreign military build-ups.

Both amendments were sponsored by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., a long-time foreign aid critic.

East Germans' Flight Halted

BONN, Germany (AP)—An exodus, one of history's greatest, has come to an end, at least temporarily, with the Communist action in barring East Germans from fleeing to the West.

This flight of three million or more persons over a 12-year period exceeds the 1960 population of either Los Angeles or Philadelphia. It has cost the Communists untold riches in manpower and helped build the economy of West Germany into one of the most thriving in the world.

Since Sunday, when the Communists closed the main escape hatch in Berlin, the flow has slowed to a trickle. Before that, 1,000 to 2,000 a day were crossing the border, leaving their worldly goods behind.

Some 2.7 million refugees have registered since Sept. 1, 1949, when West Germany began to keep track of them. The West German Ministry of All-German Affairs estimates 800,000 more came without bothering to register.

Nearly 200,000 in 1960. In 1960 alone, 139,188 refugees were counted. In 1961, up to last Monday, 158,474 checked in. The accent was on youth, with half under the age of 25.

West German government officials point out that the flow rose and fell according to political events.

After the German Democratic Republic (East) was founded in October 1949, the total was 18,563 in one month. The figure then slumped, but climbed when the Communists organized their secret police six months later.

By January 1952, it dropped to a record low of 7,227 a month. It rose slowly when the Reds started pressuring people into their police force, labor service and pre-military training camps.

The big year was 1953. The increase coincided with a drive to collectivize farms, industry and business. The Communists also were putting pressure on the churches at the time.

In March that year, a record 58,605 refugees fled as the regime forced large numbers of craftsmen into government-run industries.

From then until the East Germans revolted June 17, 1953, the refugee total never went below 35,000 a month.

After the uprising, secret police unleashed a wave of arrests and tightened security precautions.

The number rose again in August 1955 when the Reds announced German reunification was only possible on Communist terms.

Such plans "have a way of leaking out," according to the speaker. Such a policy of silence is frustrating to newsmen here but is standard procedure in the Russian or any other dictatorship.

Still, the question remains. How and when will we act? Speakers from the State Department, the Pentagon, and the White House at this briefing session gave the definite impression that we will act to protect those three vital interests.

Big Plane Returned From Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A hijacked $2.5 million airliner was returned from Havana Wednesday along with the bullet with which its crew was threatened.

Capt. William Buchanan, 40, of Miami, who flew the Eastern Air Lines propjet there July 24 at gunpoint piloted it back from Havana. He said he did not know whether a $50,000 Cuban patrol boat, in exchange for which Fidel Castro had released the airliner, had arrived in Cuba. The boat left Tuesday from Key West.

Copilot John N. Yandell, displayed a 9 mm. Luger bullet with which Wilfredo Alberto Oquendo, a Cuban-born naturalized American, had threatened the crew. He said, "Jorge Vara Vilches, assistant to the chief of security at Havana Airport, gave it to him as a souvenir."

"We heard nothing about Oquendo, except that a security policeman mentioned he was in jail," said Buchanan.

Couldn't Start Plane

"The Cubans could not have started the plane," the captain said. "They don't have the equipment. Apparently they didn't like to have it sitting around down there."

The interior of the plane had not been touched, the captain said. The plane was placed in flight in normal time, he added.

But on the exterior, signs of "Viva Cuba," had been written in grease.

The plane, with 38 persons aboard, was headed for Dallas, Tex., from Miami when it was held up. Buchanan, Yandell and Knudsen were the crew that day.

Senate OKs Withdrawal Of Sales Tax Commission

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Senate voted Wednesday night to increase sales tax revenues by $35 million, less than a half an hour after the same tax proposal was defeated.

The money would be raised to balance the 1961-62 budget by eliminating the commission paid to merchants for collecting the sales tax and by requiring tax collections due next July to be paid in June.

The measure goes back to the House for agreement on amendments.

The two provisions were contained in a bill to grant manufacturers exemptions to certain processors from payment of sales taxes on materials used in their business.

The deciding vote was 28-21, as the three Republicans and one Democrat, who only minutes earlier voted against the measure, changed their minds.

The first vote was 24-25, with Sen. Paul Mahady, D-Westmoreland, voting with the solid Republican block.

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States and 19 Latin-American nations Wednesday night approved the proclamation officially launching President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program.

Cuba hailed the inter-American conference as opening the door for what it called hemispheric peaceful coexistence, but said it will refuse to sign the proclamation.

That is the constitutional requirement to pass bills in the House. Democrats have 109 votes; Republicans 101.

The House and Senate adjourned for the week. The recess gave McCann and other Democratic policy makers four days to work on marginal votes for passage of the tax measure next week.

Republicans, joined by some Philadelphia Democrats, are the opponents of the levy.

The Philadelphia Democrats have linked their opposition to the tax to a demand for school district reorganization. Consequently, the Senate vote on the reorganization plan was expected to give the party's leaders a strong hand in efforts to muster a majority for

"I do not have 106 votes," McCann declared, "but I certainly do have close to it."

The bill sets a target figure for school districts of 4,000 public school population. The measure would reduce Pennsylvania's present 2,244 school districts to about 500.

In the voting Republican Sens. Stanley Stroup, Bedford; Raymond P. Shafer, Crawford; and Paul L. Wagner, Schuylkill, joined the Democratic majority.

Democratic Sens. Gus Yatron, Berks, and Leonard C. Staisey, Allegheny, voted against the plan. Sen. Edward J

Dear Abby

His Wires Are Crossed

Dear Abby: My TV set started to act up, and I couldn't get the channel I had the most use for, so I called a TV repair man who lives near me. I thought he was a good family man.

He looked at the set and I told him, before he started to fix anything, I had to know how much it was going to cost me. He said that all depended on how nice I was to him. I thought he was kidding, so I let him take the set to his shop.

I called him five times in two weeks and asked him when he was bringing my set back. He said, "When you tell me your husband isn't home." I told him it was strictly business, but he hasn't returned my set yet. Should I call his wife or tell my husband? What does a respectable woman do in a case like that?

NO CHANNELS

Dear Abby: Call the Better Business Bureau and report this chiseler. His mind is running in channels for which you have no use.

Dear Abby: What do you think of a son who goes away to the Army and leaves his automobile for his girl friend to drive, while his own father takes the bus to work?

Not only that, but this young man sends his Army pay check to his girl to save for him. He writes to her every day, and the only way his parents know he is living is when she rings us up and gives us his regards.

ONLY HIS PARENTS
Dear Parents: Your son fell pretty hard, but there is no excuse for ignoring his parents. Pray that he will soon realize that a big man has love enough for his girl and his parents.

Dear Abby: This year we are having our first taste of barbecue dinners. I ask you, is there a host or hostess who knows how to barbecue?

We're sick and tired of eating raw, charred meat and chicken. I enjoy eating outdoors, but who can eat food that is burned on the outside and raw on the inside? And that horrible sauce they point everything with is murder!

I'll stick to my old reliable controlled-heat oven, thank you.

PEGGY

Dear Peggy: When you accept a dinner invitation for food prepared indoors, you get no guarantee that the food will be properly cooked and seasoned. If you like the company, go and take your chances, indoors or out.

Governor Vetoes Police Court Martial Bill

HARRISBURG (AP)—Legislation that would have barred removal or reduction in rank of state police without a court martial was vetoed by Gov. Lawrence.

"This bill establishes an operating rigidity which is neither beneficial to the affected officer nor to the commonwealth," Lawrence said in a veto statement.

"The requirements of this bill are such that even though a trooper may accede to a type of disciplinary action, it would be necessary to go through a court martial procedure," Lawrence declared.

The measure was sought by the Fraternal Order of Police. Lawrence said that though the state police are a quasi-military organization, they are an arm of civil government.

Lawrence also vetoed a companion measure providing for the mechanical procedure of a court martial.

Frontiers Open For Students

NEW FRONTIERS opened up by the space age, world politics and a new cultural awareness — are creating far greater demands for knowledge and skill than ever before in history.

No time in the past of our nation, has there been so much awareness of the importance of learning, not only for the individual but also with relation to the immediate future of our civilization.

Thus, a spirited re-examination of both methods of teaching and subject matter being taught at all levels of learning, has sharply focused attention on learning the fundamentals.

Need for more disciplined learning has reversed the attitude toward homework and brought "required courses" back in preference to the elective in secondary schools.

So, the serious business of getting all of the children ready for the return to school begins under the most auspicious circumstances in years.

Girl Technician Dies From Pills

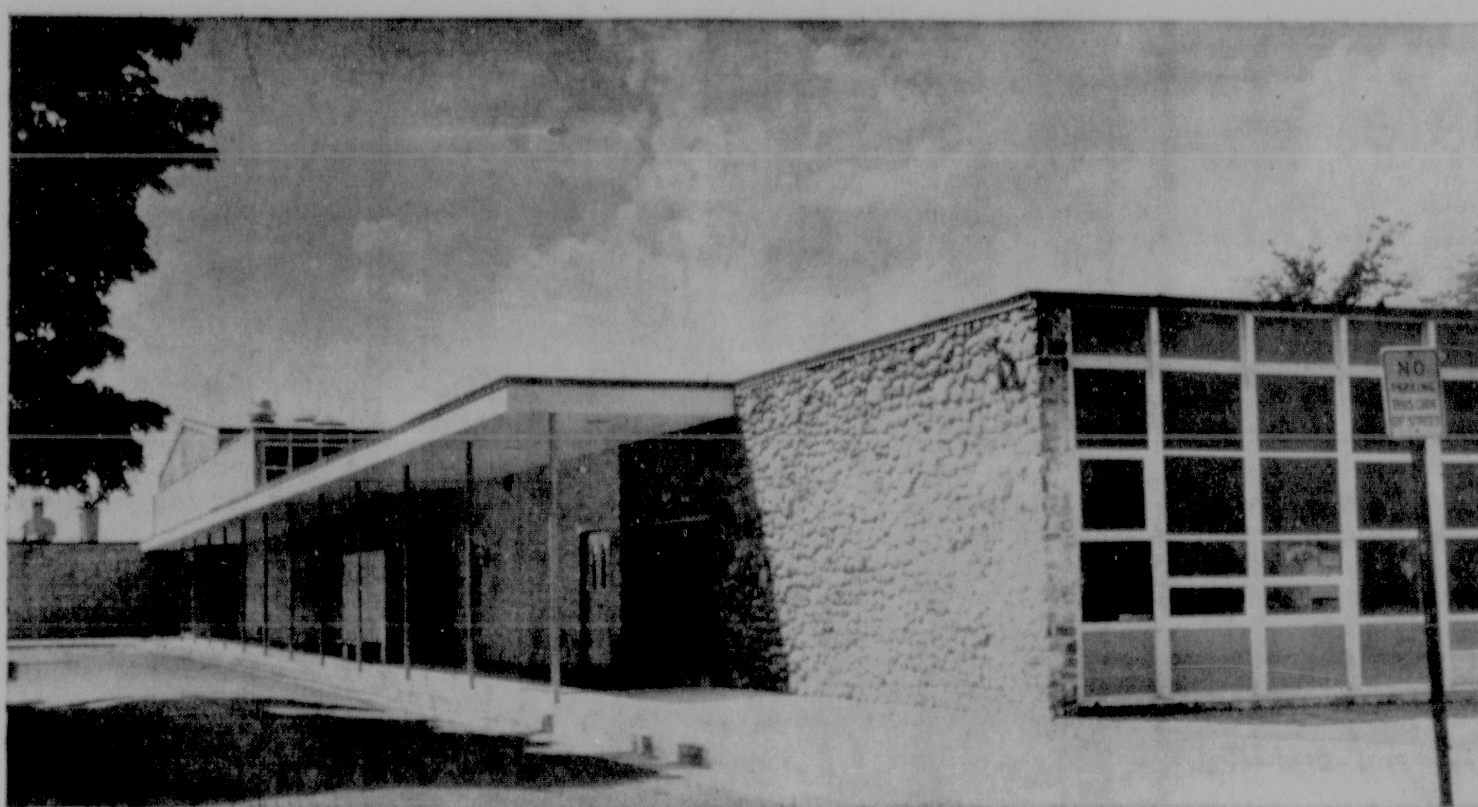

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The medical examiner's office reported Wednesday that Elizabeth Howden, 23, a Temple University medical center technician found dead in her apartment Monday night, died of an overdose of sleeping pills.

Dr. Halbert Fillingim, assistant medical examiner signed a certificate listing the death as a suicide.

Miss Howden's body, clad in a negligee, was found in her kitchen by Dr. Joel Polak, 25, her fiancé. Her cat also was found dead.

Dr. Fillingim said the cat probably also died of barbiturates.

Drainage Fund Bill Approved

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Senate Wednesday unanimously passed legislation authorizing a new use for a $9 million anthracite mine drainage fund.

Approved was a conference committee report that would set $2 million aside for the fund's original purpose and $7 million for sealing abandoned coal mines and filling voids. It now goes to the House.

The $9 million is left from a $17 million fund set up in 1955 by equal contributions from the state and local governments.

The $2 million set aside for the original purpose would meet federal requirements.

Time To Negotiate

If allowed to continue for an extended period, the labor dispute at Ronsom Corp. of Pennsylvania will create severe hardships for hundreds of area people, for one of our largest industries and for the whole economy of the region.

It is obvious, therefore, that both sides in the walkout should extend all possible effort to settle whatever points still remain in dispute.

The strike was called almost a week ago after negotiations on a new labor contract collapsed and some 425 members of Local 1724, International Assn. of Machinists, set up picket lines at the plant in Delaware Water Gap.

Both labor and management have issued statements defending their positions in the controversy, which appears to center on the type of pension plan to be instituted at the plant.

Each side appears to have valid arguments in defense of its own plan. Furthermore, as we understand the situation, the other points in dispute are not insurmountable from the standpoint of either union or company.

IAM representatives have notified the federal mediator they are ready to resume negotiations. The company, meanwhile, issued a statement calling upon the union to listen to a presentation of other pension programs for a comparison of benefits with the IAM-sponsored program. Thus, both sides appear willing to talk.

Why, then, the delay in resuming negotiations? The livelihood of approximately 425 IAM members, plus other personnel employed at the plant, is suffering because nothing, apparently, is being accomplished toward getting the two disputants together.

For the sake of the people involved, and for the entire economy, negotiations should be resumed immediately and continued without letup until the issues in dispute have been resolved.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Cooperation Needed to Curb Crime

Pennsylvania is not immune to the high costs of combating crime. And, in our opinion, a directive issued by top officials of the Pennsylvania State Police isn't making it any easier to shave these costs.

The directive prohibits State Police from making available to Pennsylvania's district attorneys any files containing investigative reports, statements or other pertinent information relating to criminal or motor vehicle investigations in the county in which the crime or violation or violations occurred.

Yet our laws require that suspects be tried in the county in which the crime was committed.

Also, the directive prohibits State

Police from seeking advice from district attorneys on proposed prosecution of offenses.

Although State Police officials may have had good reasons for issuing such an order, it appears to be a road block in fighting crime. It causes greater efforts and time on the part of district attorneys and additional costs to the taxpayers.

The Pennsylvania District Attorneys Association is seeking to have the directive rescinded.

It is our opinion that a cooperative attitude in all agencies working to curb crime is a far wiser course for all concerned.

—Erie Daily News

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Piracy In Air

Castro or his associates are undoubtedly having a ball over the kidnapping of American airplanes. Stated in simple terms, this amounts to piracy in the air, to the kidnapping of American citizens. Thus far, no one has been murdered in a pirated plane but that does not lessen the crime.

No one would engage in such a perilous activity unless the rewards were sufficiently large to justify the risk and someone must be paying those rewards and offering them conspicuously. Nevertheless, no public announcement has been made of a reward offered or received.

The attitude of the Kennedy Administration and of the Democratic leadership in Congress has not been satisfactory to the American people and the sense of outrage is swelling.

Granted that it is policy not to originate World War III over Cuba; it nevertheless is impossible for our people to accept the indignity and ridicule that arises from these acts of piracy.

The general sentiment seems to be that the Administration ought to have ways of curbing this piracy, of stopping the piracy, of forcing the return of the planes and, if necessary, of going into Cuba not only to get the planes but to get the pirates. It is true that the result of such a program could be Soviet interference. Khrushchev has publicly warned that he will protect Cuba from American intervention and the word intervention can be broadly interpreted.

But can it be interpreted to mean that the United States can do nothing, not even to defend itself against piracy, not even protect life and property seized in American or international air?

If we have fallen so low, what is the purpose of all our activity? We might just as well give up without a battle and submit to Khrushchev's dictatorship.

This then becomes the issue rather than piracy. Survival involves self-respect and dignity and an administration must recognize these qualities as essential to the morale of a nation. A country that is ashamed of itself cannot go forward.

The will for achievement can be vitiated by the incapacity of a people to be proud of the conduct of its government. National pride is essential to national self-respect without which a people cannot survive.

It is true that Castro has a great advantage of the unwillingness of most Americans to go to war and because of the Administration's unwillingness to make Cuba the issue.

But his advantage cannot long prevail without damaging the morale of the American people. Castro and his associates thumb their noses at us and ridicule us, and other countries, particularly Canada, take advantage of our softness to establish that our bigness is meaningless. It is not bigness that is important to us; it is dignity and respect and these we shall demand.

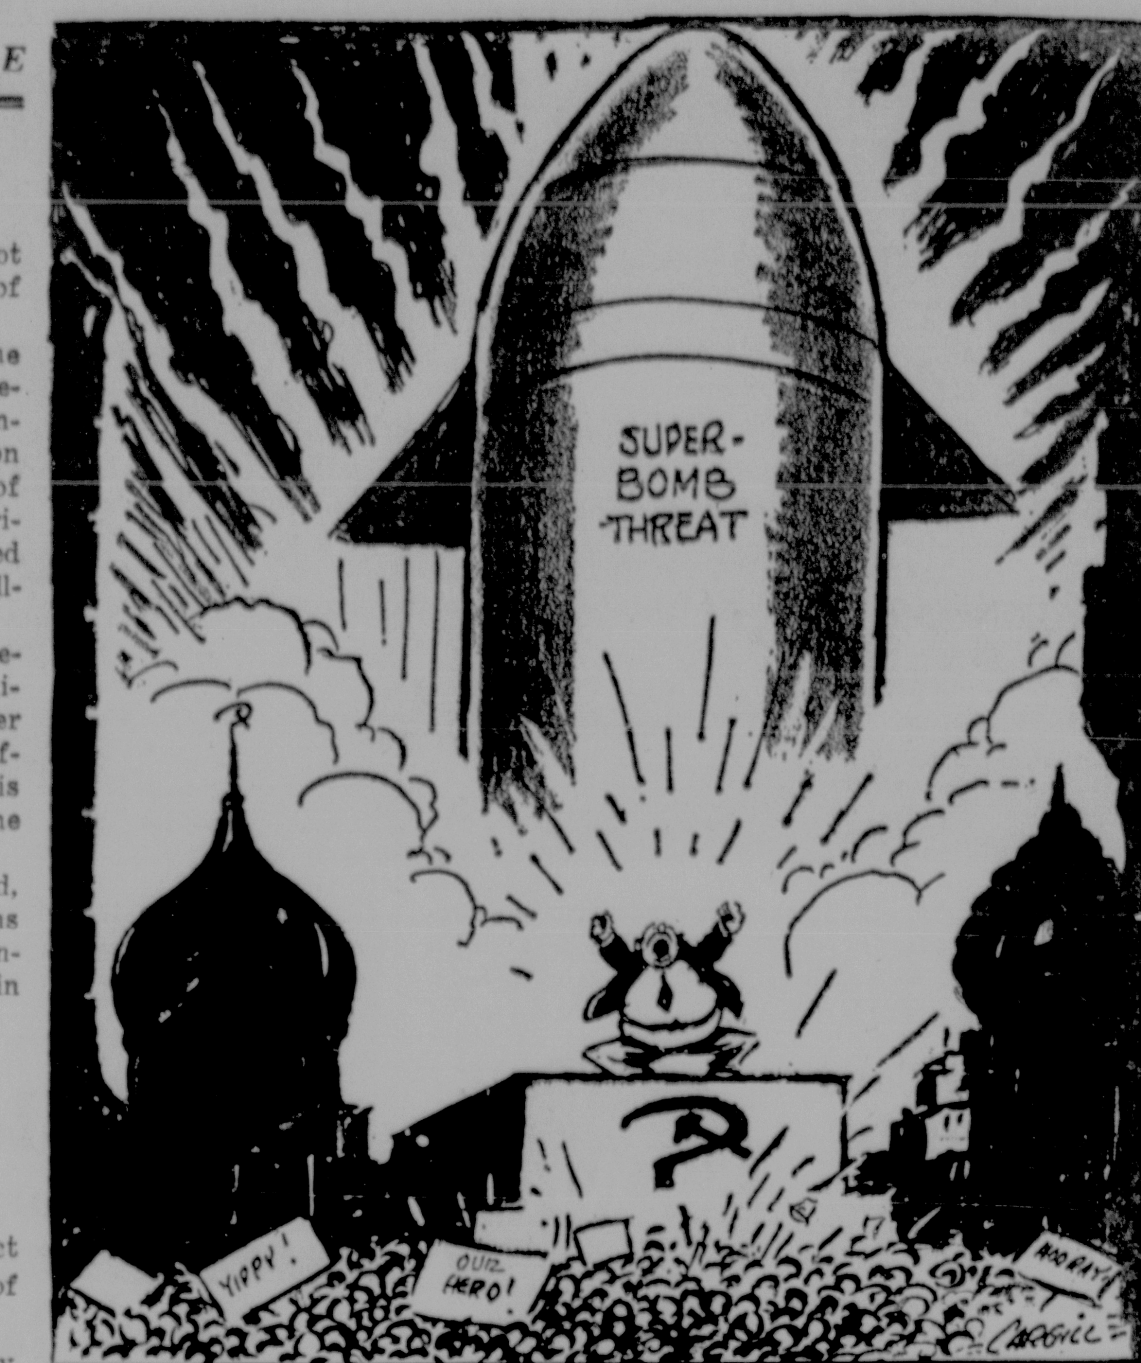

A few more plane piracies and the President will be forced to act by outraged public opinion. Editorials and articles may be written to advise the people to ignore the shame of non-resistance, but they do not serve. A headline bearing the saga, "Another Plane Hijacked," is all that need appear. The rest is commentary; the shame has been established. And Americans do not enjoy being ashamed.

One wonders whether Castro's purpose is to tease us into a war so that Soviet Russia or Red China might make war upon the United States. It could even be that his Chinese advisors have put such an idea into his head. He has nothing much to lose even in defeat whereas we lose prestige every day.

The danger is that these plane incidents will precipitate military action and no matter what else happens, Cuba and the Cuban people will pay the full bill. Cuba is too small to engage in more than a few minutes of modern warfare if that is what can come of this.

And whether the United States or Soviet Russia wins such an engagement, there will be no Cuba and there will be no Castro regime. The bewildered ones are playing only for the destruction of their country.

Soviet Russia uses Cuba to tease the United States and it takes a great deal of self-restraint to resist the temptation to act quickly under such circumstances. How much more can the American people take from Castro and his Russo-Chinese associates? I doubt if we can take much more.

Just A Devil In His Own Home Town

The Pennsylvania Story

Vote Rolls

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — In just one month they close the books.

The "books" in question this time are not ledgers—well, not exactly. That is, they're not fiscal ledgers—but they are ledgers of sorts; personal accounting ledgers would perhaps be the best description.

In this particular instance the "books" we have in mind are the registration books, and the deadline, Sept. 18, is the last day to register for Pennsylvanians looking forward to voting in the November general election.

It is generally conceded that today Pennsylvania is just about at the "breaking point" in more ways than one—but the point we are referring to at the moment is one that reflects what might appropriately be termed the "governing opinion" of Pennsylvanians.

The question of "voting"—that is, the selection of elected representatives is no longer one of those peanut items—something exclusively of no interest except to the once-upon-a-time dominant "other fellow."

Today more than five and a half million Pennsylvanians have the privilege of being classified as "registered"—which when you stop to think about it is a whopping big part of the Keystone State's adult, or over-21, population!

Registering and voting no longer are the mere political fluff-fluff of yesterday; rather today it is the actions of these registrants who finally dictate what shall or shall not be the course of events in Pennsylvania in this latter half of the twentieth century.

Political leaders know this and the wooing of registrants has become an intense and deadly serious item on both sides of the political fence.

This has reached the point where today the once solid "table of concepts" has been lustily upset. There is no longer the deadly insured swing of the pendulum of yesterday.

A look at the scoreboard is most certainly indicative of what has been happening in the Keystone State—and indicative of the crux at the present time.

For example, 15 years ago in Pennsylvania the trend was running fairly firm as it had been for years past—Republican registrant far outnumbered Democrats, the tally that year rounding out to Republican 2,737,279 to 1,854,080 Democrats. That's an edge for the GOP of nearly a million—883,199 to be exact.

Slide along ten years to 1956 and look what had happened: That year the Republican registration stood at 2,897,307, and Democrats 2,450,396—or a shrunken GOP edge of 446,911.

Now move along to last year and the registration figures for the 1960 general election and the tally as the registration books closed stood at: Republicans—2,802,237; Democrats—2,805,202. This for the first time in the history of the Keystone State gave Democrats an edge over their GOP counterparts, although of only 2965.

That 2965 isn't much and Pennsylvania Democratic leaders know it.

By Sept. 19 when the books are finally closed on registrations for the November general election the story will be a little more complete—more indicative of the "break point" going one way or the other.

Both Republicans and Democrats have been banging hard during the past few months, trying to bring up their respective registrations. The story will begin to unfold after the September 18 deadline.

What that story will be is expected to be critically indicative of things to come in gubernatorial 1962!

For example, 15 years ago in Pennsylvania the trend was running fairly firm as it had been for years past—Republican registrant far outnumbered Democrats, the tally that year rounding out to Republican 2,737,279 to 1,854,080 Democrats. That's an edge for the GOP of nearly a million—883,199 to be exact.

Slide along ten years to 1956 and look what had happened: That year the Republican registration stood at 2,897,307, and Democrats 2,450,396—or a shrunken GOP edge of 446,911.

Now move along to last year and the registration figures for the 1960 general election and the tally as the registration books closed stood at: Republicans—2,802,237; Democrats—2,805,202. This for the first time in the history of the Keystone State gave Democrats an edge over their GOP counterparts, although of only 2965.

That 2965 isn't much and Pennsylvania Democratic leaders know it.

By Sept. 19 when the books are finally closed on registrations for the November general election the story will be a little more complete—more indicative of the "break point" going one way or the other.

Both Republicans and Democrats have been banging hard during the past few months, trying to bring up their respective registrations. The story will begin to unfold after the September 18 deadline.

What that story will be is expected to be critically indicative of things to come in gubernatorial 1962!

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

Atty. Maxwell Cohen is taking a lot of good-natured ribbing from his friends on a news article naming the Stroudsburg counselor to a four-state post in the B'nai B'rith Lodge.

According to the words of a high-priced publicity organization, Cohen has gone to more schools and headed more organizations than any two other individuals around.

Max, however, is taking it in stride, knowing the public relations median meant well in their misinformed data of his life.

Even if the story was only part true it made nice reading. One would put in our scrapbook with a question mark after it.

"The Voice of the Poconos" did himself proud in a feature story in Golf Digest's current issue. We're referring to Joe Whalen, WVPO's veteran air-caster and program director.

Joe penned an article entitled, "Golf in the Poconos." The writeup is a fine piece of journalism and a jet-propelled boom to linkdom in the area.

Whalen covered all the top courses and described the mountains to a tee. Nothing was left uncovered by the "Voice" as he gave golf its rightful spot in Pocono activities.

Want to have a fascinating afternoon? Then go to the quarries in Pen Argyl and look over the holes that cough up slate to all parts of the world.

We had a chance recently to view the workings of a quarry hole co-owned by Earl Doney. This one was only 125 feet deep but the men looked like over-sized ants as they performed duties that amazed even the 20-20 eye.

Next to this so-called small quarry was a hole that had bowed to Father Time. Doney explained it was 750 feet deep. We imagine the men must have appeared so small from atop the quarry that a microscope was needed to see their movements.

The look down is so interesting that we know how a fire arsonist feels when he watches "his" building burn to the ground.

It simply captivates the on-looker, the quarry hole, we mean.

The Allen-Scott Report

Drug For Drinkers

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — A new drug — tri-iodothyronine — offers extraordinary hope for excessive drinkers.

The remarkable attributes of tri-iodothyronine, a hormone derivative, as described by Dr. R.H. Felix, director of the famed National Institute of Mental Health, Bethesda, Md., are as follows:

"When given intravenously in cases of alcoholic stupor, the individual returns to consciousness very rapidly. He not only regains consciousness, but is able to walk a straight line. This drug apparently increases the metabolism of alcohol in the blood by a factor of two.

"The normal metabolism rate of alcohol in the blood is around 15 milligrams per hundred cc.'s of blood per hour. With tri-iodothyronine, the metabolism goes up to 30 or 32 milligrams per hour.

"This isn't the only beneficial effect. The odor of alcohol vanishes from the drinker's breath. And he doesn't even smell drunk any more."

However, Dr. Felix noted two serious limitations in using this drug.

"On the basis of our research so far," he warned in a special report to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the NIMH budget, "we do not recommend this drug in cases of coronary artery disease or of adrenal insufficiency. Its use in such instances might produce unfortunate side effects."

Dr. Felix also strongly counseled against using tranquilizers to offset the effects of heavy drinking.

"That is very dangerous," he stated, "because basically alcohol is a depressant. Many people think alcohol is a stimulant, but fundamentally it is a depressant. That is demonstrated by the fact that if too much alcohol is consumed, sleep results.

"And if more alcohol is consumed, that can lead to death from acute alcoholism due to depression of the vital heart and respiratory centers."

Through $1.1 million provided by the Mental Health Institute, a broad-gauged five-year study of alcoholism is being undertaken.

It will be conducted by a special commission set up by the Institute and the North American Association of Alcohol Programs. The NAAAP consists of state officials responsible for alcohol control programs.

Dr. Nevitt Sanford, Stanford University, Calif., will be in charge of the survey. Dr. Felix listed its five basic objections as follows:

"To find out all that is presently known scientifically about alcohol and alcoholism. To compile an inventory of control programs and to evaluate them. To ascertain what various organizations are doing about alcoholism and what they should do. Submit recommendations on what should be done in the field of research; and what should be undertaken in the way of treatment for alcoholics."

Wonder Pain Reliever — A new synthetic drug — IK-1 — has been developed that is a great advance in relieving human pain.

It is the nearest to an addiction-free narcotic-type analgesic drug yet produced.

Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., long-time champion of medical research, brought this to light during a discussion with Dr. R.H. Felix, head of the National Institute of Mental Health. He was testifying on its budget before Hill's Senate Appropriations Subcommittee.

"I have been told that this drug IK-1 is as effective as codeine in relieving human pain," said Hill, "yet is less than one-seventh as addictive. That would make it the closest approach yet to a non-addictive analgesic drug."

"That is true," replied the noted medical research authority. "IK-1 is just as pain-relieving as codeine, but only about one-seventh as addictive. That means victims of pain can now be relieved over longer periods without running the danger of addiction, which is the great fear we have with all the narcotic drugs. IK-1 is a truly significant advance for suffering mankind."

More Teeth Needed — Drug counterfeiting is increasing and is becoming a serious problem. That's what Food & Drug Commissioner George Larrick told the Senate Appropriations Committee. To meet this growing problem, his agency is preparing legislation giving it more enforcement powers.

Said Larrick, "This new law is urgently needed to tighten up requirements in the drug field. We are working with leading manufacturers in drafting a measure that will give the public the protection it should have."

A graphic illustration of this need cited by Larrick is in antibiotics. Under existing law, the Food & Drug Administration inspects and certifies eight major antibiotics on a batch-by-batch basis. But there are at least 30 other important antibiotics which are not subject to such examination.

Cosmetics is another field in need of greater regulation, according to Larrick. Approximately $2 billion worth of cosmetics are now retailed annually in the U.S. Many of these products contain new and complex ingredients, the exact effects of which are uncertain.

"Legislation in this area is urgently needed," declared Larrick, "because each year we have to take legal action against cosmetics which injure users because of inadequate testing. The problem is increasing due to the continued growth of the cosmetic industry and the increased standard of living which is enabling more people to spend more money on cosmetics."

Inside You And Yours

Hard Problem

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Doubting Thomas: Calcium deposits in my arteries? Impossible! I never eat fatty meats. Why, I even skim the fat off gravy!

Doesn't calcium spread over fatty patches?

M.D.: X-rays don't lie. See these white lines? That's your aorta — lined with calcium.

D.T.: How about dairy foods? I love eggs!

M.D.: Butter-fried omelets are loaded with animal fat.

D.T.: Could exercise joggle loose some of my own fat and float it into the bloodstream?

M.D.: Exercise helps you lose fat, but it doesn't loosen any. Keep exercising — it helps prevent heart attacks.

D.T.: You're not going to tell me to lose weight, are you? I've weighed 150 for years.

He'll Live Longer

M.D.: Slim down and weigh 160 for many more.

D.T.: Is the fat in the circulation the same that settles on artery walls?

M.D.: No one really knows. The artery wall may manufacture these cholesterol deposits itself. Still, the less cholesterol in your bloodstream, the slower these fatty streaks form.

D.T.: How can I keep cholesterol out of my bloodstream?

M.D.: The body needs some — to transport other fats. And excess cholesterol doesn't have to come from eating fats. You can inherit the tendency.

Today's pressures can squeeze milky cholesterol into anyone's circulation. Ailments like diabetes or a sluggish thyroid pour more cholesterol into your blood.

D.T.: That's it! I need thyroid pills! My metabolism is minus nine.

Normal Metabolism

M.D.: That's normal. Besides, your report shows no excess cholesterol.

D.T.: Then why the calcium?

M.D.: We may never know. If these white lines were on this side where the aorta leaves the heart, we might blame syphilis.

D.T.: What?

M.D.: Don't worry. Your blood test's normal.

You look pale. Here, sit down.

D.T.: It must be my heart!

M.D.: Drink this water and you'll feel better.

D.T.: I thank you from the bottom of my heart, such as it is!

Watershed Project Bypassed

THE Senate Agriculture Committee has passed over for further study the Broadhead Creek Watershed project in Monroe and Pike Counties.

The project, to have cost $1,574,900, had been approved by the House Agriculture Committee.

A Senate spokesman said the amount of federal funds asked appeared too high in relation to benefits.

Pocono Catholic School Completed

RT. REV. Msgr. C. A. McHugh, P. A., V. F., pastor of the Pocono Catholic Missions, Mount Pocono, announced that the new Pocono Catholic Missions School is complete. This project consists of a Convent, Elementary and High School built on a 32-acre site in Paradise Township, three miles southeast of Mount Pocono.

The architects were Valverde and Franco, of Scranton. Monsignor McHugh is assisted by Rev. E. Robert Galligan and Rev. William F. Cusick.

The convent has 20 private rooms, chapel, two music instruction rooms, two visiting parlors, community room, dining room, kitchen, recreational lounge and library.

The building accommodates an elementary school as well as a high school by placing the facilities to be used mutually in the center. This serves to separate the students and simultaneously economizes in the area needed by both groups.

In the center, there is the administrative suite, principal's office, guidance department, priest's lounge, medical-dental examining and therapy suite, library and student chapel.

The chapel is completely furnished to accommodate 75 students for mass, confessions and visits to the Blessed Sacrament.

Immediately in back of the altar, there is a large stained glass window depicting the Christ Child teaching in the Temple, with Mary and Joseph entering in search of Him. This window symbolizes the objectivity and theme of the school, that is, the imitation of Christ in His love for knowledge and obedience. For this reason, the window fronts directly in the middle of the building and is illuminated to offer inspiration at night as well as day.

Both schools are designed to offer the finest courses to insure highest state accreditation. The elementary school consists of 10 class rooms, book storage and toilet facilities. Four rooms are especially designed for the primary classes, complete with their own entrances, exits and toilet facilities.

The high school consists of four homerooms, an elevated lecture room, science room, business department, home economics department and art room. In the science section, there are separate and fully equipped rooms for biology and chemistry-physics. Adjoining is a photographic laboratory with processing equipment and work tables.

In the business department, there is a typewriting room with provision for electrical typewriters; a stenographic room and business machines room. Provision is made here to enable students to produce their own newspapers, dance programs, etc.

The home economics section has separate areas for the teaching of family living, food selection and preparation, clothing construction and design. This section is fully equipped with gas and electric ranges, refrigerators, washers, dryers, sewing machines and a grooming center.

An outstanding feature of the school is the inclusion of a complete television system which consists of a projection studio, with outlets in every room to handle closed circuits and regular television. The system enables the teachers to use the latest electronics techniques in education. There is also a central channel dual-control sound system permitting inter-communication between the central office and all areas of the school. An emergency lighting and fire alarm system protect the buildings.

A concourse joins the classroom section to the areas which have the Auditorium-Gymnasium, Cafeteria, Kitchen, Faculty Dining Rooms, Music instruction department, athletic department, snack bar and shower-locker rooms. The auditorium-gymnasium includes a large stage with cyclorama and theatre lighting, three basketball courts, two of which can be used for biddy basketball, volleyball and badminton courts. Fifteen hundred can be seated for a stage production and one thousand spectators for a basketball game. Shower locker rooms are at ground level with exits to outdoor athletics as well as entrances to the gym.

Three hundred children will be accommodated in the cafeteria which affords a view of mountain scenery through a glass wall. The cafeteria-kitchen cannot be more fully equipped to guarantee efficiency and quality in hot food service.

Children will enter and leave buses under canopies between the two main buildings. An unusual feature to insure smooth traffic is a driveway through the concourse immediately under the library. This also will provide inside shelter for handling the children and adults attending special events in poor weather.

The structure is steel, concrete, brick and extruded aluminum. The finishes are vinyl-asbestos and asphalt tile, painted concrete block ceramic mosaic and wood paneling.

A deep well pump, copper tubing and sewage treatment plant are the main plumbing features. The heating system is circulating hot water provided by two oil-fired boilers and burning number four or five oil. Unit ventilators are provided in all classrooms.

The general contract was awarded to H. E. Stoudt of Allentown, Walsh Brothers of Pittston, received the heating-ventilating contract. The plumbing was done by the H. C. Archibald Co. of Stroudsburg, and W. S. Hammerman of Scranton, did the electrical work. The sewage treatment plant was constructed by A. N. Bugbee of Catasquequa, $70,000 was used to purchase permanently fixed equipment. This is a total cost of $1,529,171. The cost of the convent was $271,775. The cost of the school is $1,257,396.00. The convent square foot cost is $19.80 and the school square foot cost is $16.11.

The elementary school will accommodate 500 students and the high school, 440. Facilities such as plumbing are also provided for a future expansion at a minimum expense to accommodate four hundred (400) more students. The cost per pupil is $1337.45.

Ground was broken in September, 1959; the solemn blessing and dedication will be on Sunday, Sept. 3, at 4 p.m. with His Excellency, The Most Rev. Jerome D. Hanan D.D., Bishop of Scranton presiding. His Excellency, the

The drivers were identified as Robert Gimerch, 39, of Lebanon, and Clyde R. Drumheller, 37, of Hatfield.

Gimerch was operating a tractor-trailer east on Route 209 and was struck by the Drumheller vehicle as he rounded the curve. Drumheller was traveling west at the time of the accident.

Police said that Drumheller struck the rear wheels of the trailer, hit the truck and glanced off, running into a bank on the north side of the highway.

Drumheller will be arrested for reckless driving.

Distressed Areas Plans Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government has tentatively approved economic development plans submitted by two distressed areas in Pennsylvania.

The two plans cover all or part of 16 counties in the state. The Area Redevelopment Administration's approval opens the way for the areas to seek federal aid in financing job-creating projects.

The areas involved are Johnstown (Cambria and Somerset counties) and northeastern Pennsylvania (Bradford, Carbon, Columbia, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Monroe, Montour, Northumberland, Pike, Schuylkill, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wayne and Wyoming counties).

7th Day Adventist School To Open New Year Sept. 5

THE Seventh-day Adventist Elementary School on Stroudsburg's W. Main St., will open for the year on Tuesday, Sept. 5, with an enrollment of approximately 35 pupils.

Students Take Notice

HIGH SCHOOL and college students, take notice. If you are planning to enter the business world after completing your education, develop good penmanship.

American business loses millions of dollars annually because of illegible writing, according to Wesley E. Scott, handwriting consultant for the Sheaffer Pen Company. Department stores in particular suffer because of illegible sales slips. Personnel managers complain that many job applicants do not write legibly, therefore they look unfavorably on those applicants who do display good penmanship. Many of these managers now insist that applications and forms be filled out by hand.

Application and patience are the keys to good penmanship, says Mr. Scott. The five basic characteristics of good writing, he points out, are slant, size, alignment, spacing and letter formation.

Holding the pen properly is the first step toward acquiring legible handwriting, he continued. First, hold the pen lightly, because a tightly-held pen will result in cramped writing. The point which teaches elementary classes to Grades One through Eight, will be some time in the first week of June, according to T. E. Banks, principal.

Included in the schedule are about 10 days' vacation at Christmas, three to four days for Easter, and other holidays such as Veterans' Day and Columbus Day.

Exact closing date of the school will be decided upon the number of days granted for holidays.

of the pen should be toward the left shoulder, the paper tilted so that the long edge is about parallel with your writing arm. It is far better, he says, to write legibly than speedily.

The results of speedy writing are all too often only partially formed letters, carelessly dotted "i's" and "t's" that are scarcely distinguishable from "e's."

LaAnna Church Will Renovate

LA ANNA — Plans for extensive repair work to the LaAnna Methodist Church were discussed during the August meeting of the official board Burton Carlton presided.

The board authorized the trustees to obtain necessary insurance to cover workmen, and to go ahead with roofing, chimney and other repairs, subject to the approval of the office of the district superintendent and the building commission.

Rev. James Jeffers announced that the Quarterly Conference will take place on Sept. 6 at South Sterling Methodist Church with Rev. Dr. Earle V. Tolley presiding at 8 p.m.

The board agreed to meet in homes of members instead of at the church. The Sept. 11 meeting will be held at the home of

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Carlton, LaAnna. Anyone interested may attend. There will be a study program at the close of the business session.

Attending the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. Burton Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith, Mrs.

Rattigan's Comedy Next Attraction At Playhouse

TERENCE Rattigan's comedy, "O, Mistress Mine," starring Jane Wyatt and Tom Helmore,

Tom Helmore

will be presented next week at Pocono Playhouse, Mountain-home. The play, made famous on Broadway by the team of Lunt and Fontanne, concerns the complications that surround a true love affair between an industrialist serving as a Cabinet member in London during the war and an attractive widow.

Because of his government post, he cannot get a divorce, so the two reside happily together without benefit of clergy. The idyllic situation is upset by the return of the lady's 18 year old son who had been evacuated to Canada three years before and now returns to his home in London with radical ideas and no high regard for either the minister or the irregular home life.

Co-starred On TV

Miss Wyatt is perhaps best known as co-star with Robert Young in the TV serial "Father Knows Best." She established herself as a top-flight star in such motion pictures as "Boomerang," "Pitfall," "Task Force" and other such successful films, and on stage, succeeded Margaret Sullivan in "Dinner at Eight."

Miss Wyatt's latest film release was "Interlude," which was made in Germany. Tom Helmore, co-starring with Miss Wyatt will be remembered by Playhouse goers in "Debut," with Peggy Ann Garner, a few seasons ago.

He has had starring and top featured roles in more than 13 Broadway plays and is well known to TV viewers in such productions as "Of Human Bondage," "Albert," "The Skin Game" and many others. Motion picture fans have seen him in "Tender Trap," "Designing Woman," "Lucy Gallant," "Three Included in the supporting cast are Helen Noyes, Billy Gray and Joy Nicholson. "O, Mistress Mine" will continue Monday through Saturday, Aug. 26, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. For reservations phone LY 5-7456.

Good News For Back To Schoolers

GOOD NEWS for the back-to-school brigade! This fall there's a place in the sun—even for rainwear. Fashionwise styling and a new finish have taken the raincoat out from under the umbrella, even on days when there isn't a cloud in the sky.

Typical of the new crop of all-weather coats are gay reversible styles. Natural-colored "rainy day" sides turn-about to gay paisley prints for fair day wear. Light colors, usually snubbed by the female population because of their perishability are also coming into their own. The reason? . . . new fabric-finish "Scotchgard" rain and stain repeller. It's the first durable water repellent that lasts through repeated washings and dry cleanings. "Scotchgard" rain repeller protects against oily stains as well. If you get a spot on the coat—just blot it and the stain will disappear. It's almost impossible to stand the fabric because each fiber is coated with a fluorochemical . . . and fluorochemicals don't mix with oil or water. Other all-weather styles that come into fashion prominence for the school and college brigade are the "foreign intrigue" trench coat and the single-breasted, raglan sleeve style.

Seized Plane's Cargo Mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seizure of an American cargo plane by Bolivian authorities July 30 posed an international mystery yesterday.

State Department officials refused to discuss the nature of the plane's cargo and said they did not know what charges, if any, had been filed against the crew.

The Bolivian government ascribing the seizure to widespread smuggling activities, has imposed a modified form of martial law at Santa Cruz, where the American plane was ordered to land by Bolivian air force fighters.

The aircraft, a four-engine U.S.-owned Constellation and its five-man crew—four Americans and one Brazilian native—are in Bolivian custody. The plane is in Santa Cruz, the men in jail in La Paz.

Steel Employees Get Wage Boost

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U. S. Steel Corp. said yesterday it will increase the salaries of supervisory employees by six per cent, effective Sept. 1.

A company spokesman said the pay hikes will be given thousands of foremen and other types of supervisors in U.S. Steel and its 25 divisions and subsidiaries. The salary hikes will not apply to top executives, he said.

The increases are the first for supervisory personnel since Sept. 1, 1958.

Bill For Funds For Highways

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., said Wednesday he has introduced a bill to confine federal gasoline and other motor vehicle tax money for use on highways.

"Of the $4.3 billion per year collected by the federal government through excise taxes, $1.7 billion is poured into the U. S. treasury and used for foreign aid and other projects," Van Zandt said in a statement.

He said he introduced his bill at the request of the Pennsylvania Home Rule Association, with headquarters in Altoona.

The bill would have the states get 50 per cent of the funds, and cities, boroughs and townships the remaining 50 per cent.

Hit-Run Driver Rams Porch In Stroudsburg

THE front porch of a double house at 539-541 Ann St., Stroudsburg was damaged by a hit and run driver yesterday at 4:40 a.m. Chief of Police John Tretheway said last night.

He added the car was apparently traveling west when it jumped the curb, crossed the sidewalk and struck the east side of the porch.

The vehicle tore out three posts supporting the roof and the porch railing.

The accident was reported by Mrs. Charles A. Sorensen, who resides on the west side of the house. She told police that the sound of the crash awakened her but when she came down stairs to investigate the car had gone.

Police took samples of green paint, a radio antenna and several pieces of broken glass from a headlight which they will send to a police laboratory for a more detailed study and examination.

UAW Flare At Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union flared back at Chrysler Corp. yesterday for the company's rejection of a union demand for annual salaries in lieu of hourly wages for production and maintenance workers.

Chrysler is the only one of the big three automakers flatly to turn down this union proposal in new contract bargaining that began at the end of June.

Ford said Tuesday the issue had not been discussed there yet. General Motors hasn't replied to this or other major economic demands, such as a shorter work week.

Contracts between the big three and the UAW run out Aug. 31 and the union has authorized its locals across the country to conduct strike votes to bolster the hand of its negotiators at the bargaining tables.

UAW Vice President Norman Matthews termed Chrysler's rejection of annual salaries "an ill-advised pattern of bargaining which led to strikes in each set of national negotiations since 1948."

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Guess who gets the first fall clothes? You're wrong! It's the girls going to college. Either they've been working and have their own money or they've been working on Dad and have his. In either case, it's the college clothes that move first.

Next in line come the kindergartners — they've been waiting to go to school for five years and this year they're going to be ready! Perhaps Mother can postpone the new shoes and the hair cuts for a week or so but there's usually one new dress already hanging up for the youngsters to admire and show off to their four-year-old friends.

The "back-to-school" edition always seems to catch me off guard. Surely it can't be THAT late. But it is. Why it's practically dark by 8 o'clock. Actually getting ready for "back to school" involves certificates and new clothes. It's a whole new way of life.

It's a way of life symbolized by the clock—you've got to get them ticking and then pay attention to what they say after ignoring them for most of the summer. You have to get up by an alarm, eat on schedule and get stern about bedtimes.

Well, we've got two weeks left so let's all make the most of it. One word of warning to all those females, young and old who've spent the summer in sandals and "go-aheads"—the human heel gets mighty tender and there are going to be blisters no matter how comfortable those shoes with heels may have felt last spring.

Heels will harden but I don't know what we'll do about the blisters on our dispositions.

Here's How A Secretary Can Move Up With Boss

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

"Every once in a while I hear of a secretary who gets a good promotion and moves right ahead with her boss whenever he moves ahead," writes a secretary from New England. "But how do you get yourself in line so a boss will want to take you along when he steps up in the world?"

In order to check my opinions on this with those of other people in the field, I've talked with several top executives who've moved around the country and taken their secretaries with them.

One Suggestion
"My suggestion for women who want to move ahead with the boss is to consciously look for a spot where they stand a good chance of having their work noticed by potentially important men," the president of one company advised. "And, as far as I'm concerned, the right spot for this is in a small company where the work they do will show."

"Certainly it stands to reason that the kind of work any employee does will show a lot more in a firm with 100 to 200 employees than it will in a firm with 10,000 people."

Right Spot
"Once you get a job in the right spot, the next step is to look for the right spot within the company," another executive told me. "You can do this by sizing up the situation within the company and pin-pointing the men who will probably move ahead and be in demand for bigger and better jobs."

After you do this, this executive suggests that you work hard to get into the departments where potentially successful men work. Expose your abilities and ambitions to them.

If you're in a secretarial pool at first, show these men your willingness to work a little harder than anyone else. Then, when one of these men needs a secretary, ask for the chance to be considered for the job and spare no efforts in trying to get it.

"Analyze the skills you're going to need to be valuable to the man for whom you want to work," a man in personnel work suggested. "Then develop those skills."

"I can tell you about a girl," he went on, "who never knew anything at all about bookkeeping. But when she saw how valuable this skill would be to the man for whom she was working, she went ahead, learned all she could about figures and finances and constantly exposed her ability along these lines to him."

Happy Ending
And the happy ending to that story, according to my inform-

Buyers Group May Go Coed

OTTAWA, Canada (AP)—Beryl Plumtre, a tall, silver-haired woman, is the national president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, a 30,000-member woman's organization whose aim is to protect, educate and represent today's buyers.

She is the wife of Wynne Plumtre, Canada's assistant deputy minister of finance, and the mother of two teen-agers.

"I am vitally interested in welfare work and things affecting the way of life of Canadian women," the fifth-generation Australian says.

At next fall's annual meeting she will ask delegates to open association membership to men "because basically consumer problems are common to men and women, who make the decisions jointly."

"Mrs. Plumtre will back proposals to solicit support and more recruits from groups other than those in the middle-income bracket and to initiate a department to test consumer products to inform the buying public better."

The association also would like to see a cabinet minister handling a consumer's department in the federal government.

Salad Rolls Popular Form Of Sandwich

By Cecily Brownstone

Associated Press Food Editor Restaurants started the fashion and home cooks took it over. Nowadays sandwiches come as "salad rolls."

For the filling, practically anything goes. This chicken combination is pleasant to serve the girls—be they 16 or 60.

Frosted Chicken Rolls
6 sliced frankfurter rolls
1/4 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing
2 tablespoons minced onion
1/2 cup finely diced celery
2 tablespoons minced red or green pepper or pimiento
1 1/2 cups diced cooked chicken
8 slices crisply-cooked bacon (crumbled)
Salt and pepper
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk

Using a fork, remove bread from the insides of the bottoms of the frankfurter rolls. In a medium-sized bowl mix together the salad dressing, onion, celery, green pepper, chicken and bacon; add salt and pepper to taste. Fill each scooped out roll bottom with about 1/3 cup of the mixture. Replace tops and wrap in foil or transparent plastic wrapping. Chill until serving time. Soften cream cheese with milk. Frost tops of filled rolls with mixture. Garnish as desired. Makes 6 servings.

Other Salad Rolls
In New York restaurants that specialize in serving these salad rolls, usually both sides (tops and bottoms) of the frankfurter rolls are scooped out and the filling is added in lavish amounts.

A special New York filling is made of diced cooked chicken, cooked rice (cold), cooked green peas, diced crisp celery, mayonnaise and seasonings.

Another special filling is made of a combination of cooked and raw vegetables with a well-seasoned mayonnaise-type dressing. The cooked vegetables may be green peas, cut green beans and diced carrots; the raw vegetables may be diced celery, sliced radishes, minced green pepper, grated carrot.

Lobster, crabmeat, salmon and tuna salads are fillings that do well in salad rolls. If you use lobster, let the true flavor of the seafood hold its own; couple the lobster only with celery, mayonnaise and seasonings.

Chopped cooked corned beef and smoked tongue also make good fillings for salad rolls. Chopped hard-cooked eggs are fine to mix with these meats and the mayonnaise may be zipped up with prepared mustard or pickle relish or both. Instead of the eggs, finely shredded crisp green cabbage may be added to the meat.

If you're thinking of making some of these salad roll sandwiches, you can have the rolls on hand in your freezer and then thaw them before adding the freshly-made filling.

Mrs. Clausen Gets Next To The Kennedys

Getting next to the Kennedy home in Hyannisport, Mass., poses its problems Mrs. Rosa Clausen of Marshalls Creek, former resident of Delaware Water Gap, has discovered.

Mrs. Clausen had been invited to see how the antique Wooster china she had sold to an interior decorator had fared in a cottage he had renovated in Hyannisport.

The cottage is next to the home of President Kennedy who was expected to arrive by helicopter the afternoon of her visit. Mrs. Clausen who had expected to find the town crowded discovered empty streets since no cars are permitted within the city limits. When she reached the barrier on the streets around the Kennedy home she was stopped by Secret Service men.

With a valid reason for her visit, Mrs. Clausen was permitted to proceed. She found that the antique Wooster china had been made the motif of the entire cottage renovations. Meat platters had been used as a tray and as a small table top. Other pieces decorated the walls, and the colors of the china had been used in the furnishings.

Bright Colors For School

BRIGHT COLORS and children go together. Circuses, street carnivals, and department store toylands utilize gaudy hues to attract young eyes and create an air of excitement to stimulate youthful imaginations.

The association of bright colors with children is being used for a different reason this fall in many areas of the country. Highway officials in many states are now employing bright colors to make streets safer for school children.

Throughout the metropolitan sections of Chicago, Indianapolis, Dallas, Seattle and other large cities "school zone" signs are blossoming out in vibrant orange colors that fairly shout for a motorist's attention.

These signs, made of "day-light-fluorescent" colors, can be seen by drivers at great distances, even on dull, cloudy days. The colors are so bright they appear to shimmer.

The new signs give motorists no excuse for failing to slow down for school zones. The optical brilliance of the colors act as visual magnets. The motorist who claimed he failed to see them would be guilty of serious inattention or very bad eyesight.

Although no way has been devised to determine tragedies that have not happened, highway officials are confident the new signs have helped reduce accidents involving youngsters.

The brilliant new colors are clearly visible during the daylight hours when school zone speed regulations are in effect, but do not reflect at night when they are not needed.

Youth, 20, Committed To Jail

FLOYD KEIPER, 20, of Allentown, was committed to Monroe County Jail yesterday after pleading guilty to "arson of a motor vehicle before Justice of the Peace Stanley A. Serfass, Polk Township.

Keiper also goes under the alias of Floyd Oscar Husman. He will remain in jail until the next term of court.

He was arrested by Trooper John Warkala of the Lehigh State Police barracks.

The car was stolen from William Frable, Kunkletown RD 1.

Parents' First Assignment

THE FIRST assignment for parents, as school opening nears, is checking the youngster's well-being.

Is the boy or girl physically fit to face the challenges of the school year ahead?

Now's the time to check eyes, ears, teeth and a child's total health.

How about eyes? Every child should have an eye test once a year. If your child has had trouble in school, make very sure you get both his vision and hearing checked. No child can learn well if he cannot see the blackboard or hear the teacher clearly.

How about weight and nutrition? Has your youngster gained enough and not too much? Maybe you need to plan his diet more carefully — too many snacks and not enough muscle building staples. Maybe it is a little extra sleep he needs.

Don't forget the child's teeth. Plan an early visit to the dentist; have needed dental work done well ahead of Fall.

Be sure that the youngster has all essential preventative vaccine shots. Check with the doctor on what's new and necessary.

Consider the child's posture, too. Are his muscles firm and strong? His coloring good?

Don't overlook securing professional help for the child who sucks his thumb, wets his bed, or dawdles over food and chores. Some of these problems are emotional, others have a physical origin.

Plan appointments for each of the children in the family well in advance of school opening. Be sure ample time is available for proper care and treatment of physical and emotional problems.

Met Soprano, Curtis Unit Set For Buck Hill Concert

ROSE Bampton, Metropolitan Opera soprano, and the Curtis String Quartet will be the featured performers for the Buck Hill Community Services Committee Thank-You Concert at The Inn, Buck Hill Falls, Thursday, Aug. 24.

The concert will be held in the auditorium at The Inn beginning at 8:30 p.m. Wilfrid Pelletier, director of the Firestone television and radio programs, will be the conductor.

Miss Bampton, internationally famous dramatic soprano, has sung in all of the states in United States and on the concert and opera stages of almost every country in the world. The first American-born and American-trained artist to sing the role of Kundry in "Parsifal" at the Met, Miss Bampton was awarded the 1950 citation of the National Association of American Composers and Conductors as "the most distinguished figure of the year in American music."

Conductor Since 1917

Pelletier has been a conductor of French and Italian operas at the Met since 1917. In addition to the Firestone shows, he was also director of the Sherwin-Williams "Met Auditions of the Air" and many other musical events. He made the first mark in his career in 1914 when he won the Province of Quebec prize for European study which led to him studying the piano in Paris with Isidor Phillip, harmony with Rousseau, composition with Widor and opera tradition with Bellaigue.

The Curtis String Quartet, well known in this area, is popularly acclaimed as one of the finest string groups in the world. The members have just returned from a summer of teaching and performing at the International Institute for Strings, Inter-American Univ., in Puerto Rico. As in the past years, the concert is the Buck Hill Services Committee's way of saying "thank you" to contributors to the once-a-year fund. For over half a century this organization along with, guests at the Inn and area residents, have contributed money and personal service to agencies working for the welfare of the people of Barrett Township and Monroe County.

$120,000-plus Raised

Over $120,000 has been raised in the past twelve years with well over half of the funds going to the Monroe County General Hospital. The balance has gone to other agencies, many of them in Barrett Township.

This year all contributions are to be distributed without expenses. Reserved seat tickets to the benefit concert will be available to all who wish them regardless of the amount of any contribution. Seats will, in fact, be available whether or not a contribution is made.

Forty Fort Boy Drowning Victim

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—Richard E. Meeker, about 20, of Forty Fort, Pa., presumably drowned yesterday when he and a companion took a canoe out on the Straits of Mackinac.

William Erxleben of Batesville, Ind., told officers he and Meeker took the canoe out. "We went out early and ran into a squall about 3 a.m.," he said.

"We both had life jackets on and started swimming after the canoe capsized. There were strong winds and rain. We swam together about half an hour toward shore and then waves separated us."

A Coast Guard amphibian plane and two life boats searched for Meeker in the wind swept straits around the summer resort island. Meeker and Erxleben both worked in one of the resort hotels here.

Alliance Cuts Jibe At Castro

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — Latin-American and U.S. delegates settled a hemispheric conference feud by cutting out a political jibe at Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro from a conference proclamation.

The Daily Record, The Stroudsburg, Pa.—Thurs., Aug. 17, 1961 11

Sources said the delegates to the inter-American conference agreed to throw out a reference to the necessity for "free and periodic elections" in the Americas contained in the original draft of the proclamation.

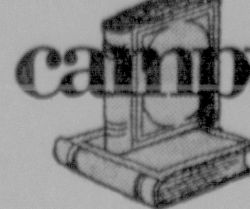

Some felt that inclusion would merely give the Cuban delegate

Ernesto Guevara, Castro's economic chief, an excuse for another propaganda attack on the United States. Others argued that it was out of place in economic negotiations.

Informants said with the concession all 21 of the nations except Cuba approved the final draft of the proclamation.

The 900-word proclamation outlines the spirit and aims of the conference, called to put President Kennedy's $20-billion Alliance for Progress program in motion.

Delegates feared the basic charter, running to 3,000 words, would be over the heads of most of Latin America's 200 million. So they proposed a proclamation summarizing the charter.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL IN SMART FASHIONS

STAR ANNOUNCER — Jimmy Demaret looks out from the 10th green at Pocono Manor as he gets set to narrate the filming of All-Star golf there this week. Demaret was once a leading money winner when he toured the circuit in the 1940's.

Mick's 60 HR Odds 50-50; Rajah's Odds Even Less

A BASIC theorem in probability applied to the red hot home run race between Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Babe Ruth showed today that Mantle's chances of becoming the new Sultan of Swat stood at 50-50, the odds against Maris were 4-1 but the combined chance of one or the other or both men breaking the 60 home run record was 3-2 in favor.

Taken into account in working out the odds were such assumptions as the number of homers needed to beat Ruth, the probability of either batter getting a homer in any appearance at the plate (official and unofficial at bats), the probability of not hitting a homer.

The statistician had to assume that the physical and psychological influences that governed play for 110 games would operate in the remaining 44.

These included such items as the psychological stimulation of two teammates competing, the manager's permissiveness in allowing Mantle and Maris to swing for the fence and the individual player's own decision to go for the home run.

The odds based on the Mantle-

Maris home run production for July and the first nine games in August gave both men an even better chance of breaking the record. If Mantle continued at his midsummer pace, when he hit 18 homers in 38 games, his chances of hitting 61 or more would be better than 2-1. Maris, who hit only 14 in 37 games during the same period, would be fighting odds of more than 3-1 against him.

Applying the formula to Ruth after 110 games in 1927 showed that the Babe had a probability of hitting 60 homers of .01. Translated into odds, the chances were 99-1 against him.

JFK Signs Hall Fame Ball

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy, in the tradition of seven predecessors, Wednesday autographed a baseball displayed in baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., took the ball to the White House for Kennedy to sign. It already bore the penned autographs of every president since William Howard Taft with the exception of Woodrow Wilson.

Keller Seeks 1st Win At Langhorne Track

LANGHORNE, Pa.—Al Keller, veteran speedway performer from Green Acres City, Fla., is enjoying one of his most successful campaigns of auto racing competition.

The veteran of 23 racing seasons is still trying to break into the win column at the Langhorne Speedway.

Keller is in hopes the 100-mile double feature championship, scheduled for the 'Horne on August 27, will be the vehicle to his initial local triumph. Forty-one-year-old Keller finished fifth in the 1961 Indianapolis '500 with a 136.034 mph average. His best previous performance was sixth in 1958.

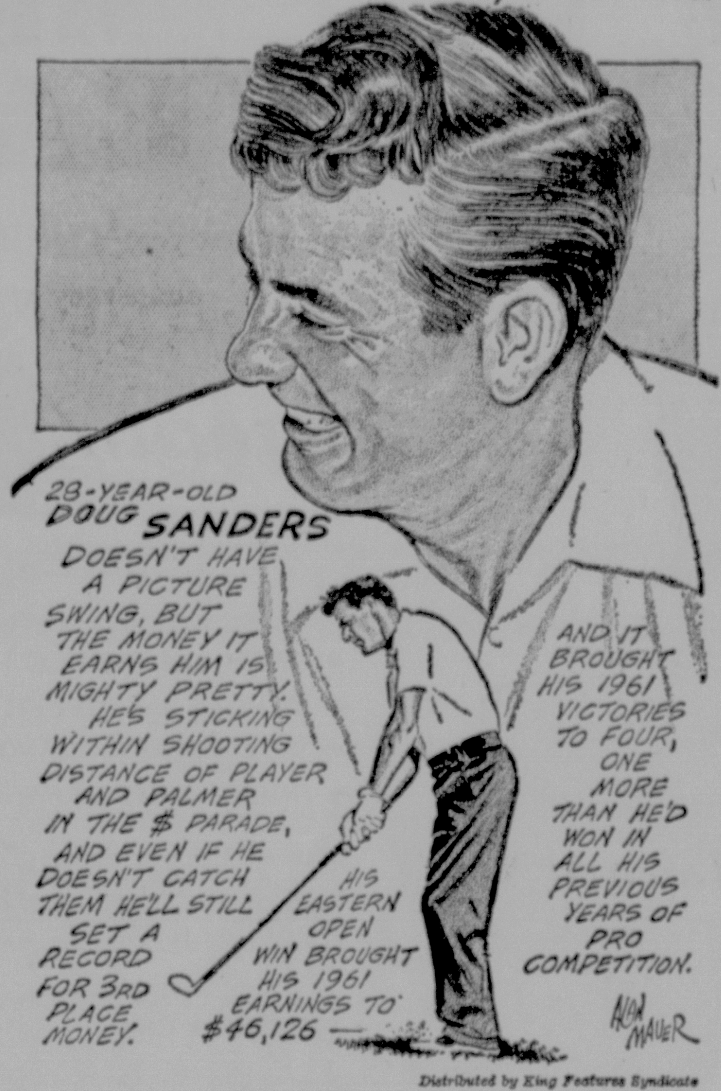

In the Milwaukee century, earlier this season, Keller pushed Roger Ward to his world record triumph at a 103.891 mph speed. Keller's time for second was also better than the previous world mark.

In the National championship at Langhorne in June of this year, Keller was with the pace makers until mechanical difficulty forced him out. The Florida pilot is presently in fourth position in USAC National standing.

THE Denver University hockey team won only four of 18 games during the 1949-50 season. All four victories were over Wyoming.

THE University of the South withdrew from the Southeast Conference in 1940 after winning only three of 79 basketball games.

Northampton Dunks Shawnee

THE Country Club of Northampton swimming team splashed by Shawnee, 75-67, Monday at the Shawnee pool.

It was the season's second time the Shawnee swimmers were dunked by Northampton, but the score was not as lopsided as the first, 111-42.

The visitors led 59-56 going into the diving events, but managed 16 of the last 27 points. Northampton's Dale Wooler led that team, coping the 50-yard freestyle, the 50-yard backstroke, and the girls' 11 and over diving. Melanie Norman, 8, took two firsts, tying Susie Sykes, also a double winner, for home team scoring honors.

The highest Shawnee boy scorer was Bill Sykes with a record-setting effort in the 50-yard backstroke and a second in the freestyle.

Tim Cummins won his third straight diving event, racking up 69 points in three dives. Shawnee's record is now 2-2.

Rajah Not Thinking Of HR Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris is not thinking of Babe Ruth's major league record of 60 home runs. If that is true, then he must be thinking of Joe Hauser's minor league record of 69 home runs in a season.

At the rate the New York Yankee outfielder is pumping that ball over the fence, he may top that, too, along with Ruth's 34-year-old mark.

Roger rifled two more homers Wednesday for a season total of 48 as the Yankees defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-4. This was the Yankees' 119th game, including one tie, which puts Maris 15 games ahead of the Babe's 1927 pace.

Mickey Mantle, his running mate and friendly rival, again failed to hit one and his homer total remained at 45.

Teams Open Play Thursday In Pony League World Series

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Four teams from the east and Midwest open play Thursday night to decide regional entries for next week's 10th annual Pony League World Series.

Bridgeport, Conn., meets

Sign Saturday For Jr. Football

REGISTRANTS for the Junior Football League should appear at 10 a.m. Saturday at Stroud Union High School. This registration session is to sign up those who were not signed up last week.

Doctor's examination slips and parents permission slips have been mailed to those who registered last week. These slips will be given Saturday to registrants and should be filled out and returned at the first practice slated for August 26.

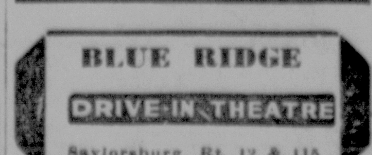

Greensboro, N.C., and Hamtramck, Mich., faces Oak Park, Ill., in the start of a best two-of-three series.

The winners will join two other representatives from the south and west next week for the double elimination tournament.

The Pony League was created in Washington in the spring of 1951 for 13 and 14-year-olds as a follow up to Little League.

Each year the residents of this town donate their services and facilities to make the tournament a first class affair. This year will be no different with service clubs, women groups and city firemen among those chipping in.

A welcoming banquet Monday night will open this year's festivities.

Mom Knows Teen-agers Best

By Eugene Gilbert
President, Gilbert Youth
Research Inc.

THERE IS A widespread belief among adults that if you teen-agers get into trouble, little or big, all of you will eventually withdraw behind this never-varying excuse:

"You just don't understand us." Are teen-agers our misunderstood generation?

We wondered. To find out, we asked 873 teen-agers whether they feel misunderstood.

We found out that not as many of you feel this way as most adults would believe, but enough of you have this feeling that it is easy to understand the adult attitude. In fact, the misunderstood youngster seems to be in the distinct minority.

We also learned that the majority of you have the good sense to try to rectify misunderstandings with adults through discussion, and that a large portion of you accept the blame for misunderstandings.

Fathers Less Understanding

Roughly one in every five teen-agers feel that either Mother, Dad or their teacher doesn't understand them. Mom apparently is the most understanding, Dad next, and Teacher the least of the three.

Of the 873 teen-agers, 17.4 per cent said their mother does not understand them (22.8 per cent of the boys, but only 12.7 per cent of the girls).

In some cases, the youngsters say this lack of understanding is a general thing: "She refuses to accept the fact that I am no longer a child," says a 17-year-old Brooklyn girl.

And in others, it concerns specific things: "She doesn't understand why I stay out late at night, why I spend too much money, why I like cars," says a 16-year-old Kansas City boy.

Almost 22 per cent (20.9 per cent of the boys and 22.8 per cent of the girls) say their fathers do not understand them.

"He expects too much of me," is the complaint of an 18-year-old girl from Edmonds, Wash. "I can't go to him with my troubles. He never sees my side of things."

This is a common complaint—a father looking for perfection in a child who doesn't feel equipped to attain it.

Others say their fathers are old fashioned, or impatient. And there is one Kansas City 17-year-old boy who says his father "doesn't entirely understand why I want to be a minister of Christ." Teachers lack understanding, say 19.2 per cent of the youngsters while 66.7 per cent say they do understand and 14.1 per cent simply don't know.

In case after case, the youngsters explain—as did 17-year-old Mary Poritz of Philadelphia: "It isn't so much that teachers fail to understand, but rather that they haven't the time to understand me and the other hundreds of students they meet with daily."

And that, after all, is a pretty understanding answer.

Many Boys Admit Fault

A total of 27.7 per cent of the youngsters (39.7 per cent of the boys and 17.2 per cent of the girls), say they are the most at fault when a serious misunderstanding does occur. Some 10.9 per cent say both sides are generally at fault, and 7.9 per cent say it depends on the circumstances. Only about 10 per cent blame their serious misunderstandings on other people, while 43.3 per cent don't know who to blame.

Kathryn Purdy, 17, of Canandaigua, N.Y., one of those who takes the blame for the misunderstandings, has a solution for them. "A teen-ager in time will become more mature and most of the misunderstandings will be solved," she says.

Exhibits To Head G-D-S Fair Opening

NEWFOUNDLAND — Registration of exhibits from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 30, will mark the opening of the 44th Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair at the fairgrounds in Newfoundland.

The Southern Wayne Joint School Band will present a concert Wednesday night, rounding out the first day of the fair that has interested vacationers and residents in the area since 1917.

Exhibits will be judged from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on August 31, with the exhibit hall opening to the public after 1 p.m. At 1:30 p.m., the Dairy Show and judging will take place. There will be entertainment on the midway, followed at night by Grandpa Jones and His Grandchildren, of Grand Ole Opry fame.

The tractor driving contest will start proceedings on September 1 at 10 a.m., and at the same time, the 4-H Horse Show will begin. At 12:30 p.m., the main horse show will begin under the direction of Ted Ash. After a successful show last year, the horse show committee feels it has a permanent addition to the fair.

Square Dance
Payment of premiums will take place from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., and there will be an old-fashioned square dance with music by the Trail Riders at night on Friday.

Saturday is always the big day of the fair, beginning with dinner served in the school cafeteria from noon until 2 p.m. At 12:30 p.m., there will be a special dinner for Octogenarians and Golden Wedding Couples, and this group will have its picture taken at 1:30 p.m.

THE Cherry Valley Grange No. 1821 held its regular monthly meeting recently with master Harold Dennis, presiding.

Business Failures Drop To 343

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of commercial and industrial failures in the week ended Aug. 11 fell sharply from the week before, Dun & Bradstreet said yesterday. Despite the drop—from 406 to 343—the total of failures remained relatively high. In the comparable week of 1960 failures numbered 308, and in the week ended Aug. 13, 1959, there were 269 failures.

Ike Supports Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration has the support of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in its move to set up a U.S. disarmament agency, it was disclosed yesterday.

"I heartily concur in your purpose," Eisenhower said in a letter read to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Monday by John J. McCloy, President Kennedy's top disarmament adviser. McCloy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk testified before the committee, appealing amid the Berlin crisis for the disarmament agency as a "task force" with scientific know-how in a touchy diplomatic area.

Wise policy demands that the United States "make strong, patient and sincere efforts" to promote disarmament even as it increases its military might to meet the new Red challenge, Rusk said. The Berlin crisis points up the urgency of the disarmament task, Rusk added.

Two-Story Provides Dramatic Livability The House Of The Week

By JULES LOH

FREQUENTLY a departure from conventional home architecture — such as this dramatic four-bedroom model — yields some points in practicality to a striking design. Not so in this case.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern instead has retained the basic advantages of both a ranch and a two-story in House of the Week B-79.

"Call it what you like," Matern said. "A sunken two-story would be a good prescription. A raised ranch is another. The main point is, there are 1,900 square feet of possible habitable area within about a 1,100 square foot perimeter."

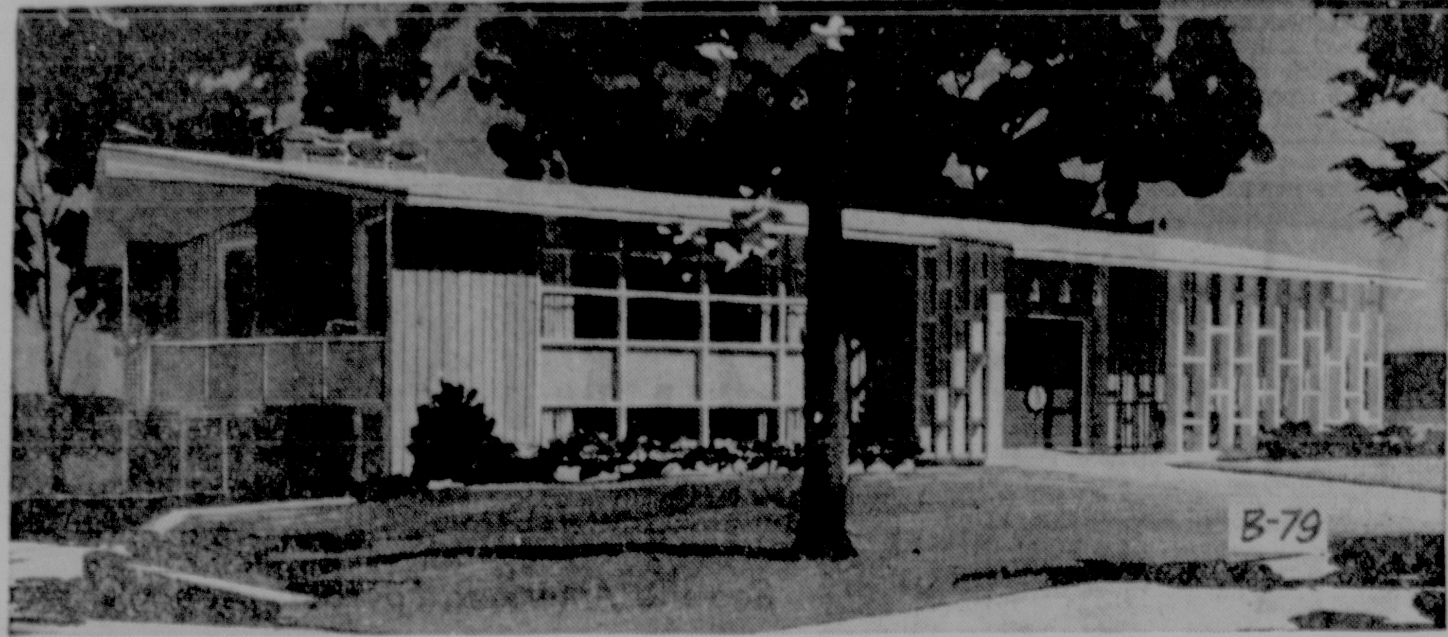

Another advantage of the design is that nearly the entire lower level can be left unfinished and completed later, room by room.

In effect, the lower level is simply a well-designed basement. Raised above the grade level, however, it doesn't have any of the living aspects of a basement — only the economical advantage of basement-type construction, that is, within the foundation walls.

The upper level contains 1,097 square feet of living area; the lower level 803 square feet excluding the garage and utility area. Its dimensions are 44 feet five inches wide by 25 feet four inches deep.

Mid-level foyers, both front and rear, add another dramatic note to the design as well as serving a functional purpose. They route traffic through the home with remarkable efficiency. There never is a need to go through the upper level to get to the lower, and vice versa.

Spacious glass areas provide plenty of natural lighting in the places where it's needed — kitchen, family room, living room and dining room. The kitchen, large (14 feet three inches by 11 feet ten inches) and well laid out, has DRAMATICALLY DIFFERENT—The sunken two-story design of this four-bedroom house combines basic advantages of both the ranch and the two-story. Lower level can remain unfinished until needed.

Additional Details

There are plenty of interior features to recommend this house, but its attractive, up to the minute exterior deserves further mention first.

Of particular note is the wood grill extending from ground to roof in front of the sunken patio off the lower level front bedroom. Iron rails protect the open area on the ends, and another grill on the opposite side of the front door completes the design.

Past the broad front windows, accented with their own grill-type construction, and around to the side of the house is another strikingly different exterior feature—the large deck porch.

The porch adds another dimension, height, to conventional indoor-outdoor living design. The combination fireplace and barbecue is another attractive indoor-outdoor feature.

Outdoor living is not confined to the deck porch, however. A terrace on the ground level leads through sliding glass doors to the family room.

Inside, B-79 is plainly zoned for comfortable and efficient living with the bedrooms on one side, the living area on the other and the kitchen in the center convenient to all parts of both levels.

Both levels feature an open design in their living and entertaining areas. The living room-dining room portion of the upper level, in fact, has nearly 400 square feet of spaciousness not counting the deck porch which is entered through sliding glass doors from both rooms.

On the lower level, the family room not only has indoor access from the kitchen but also from the rear service entrance as well as its grade level entrance from the terrace.

The garage is conveniently located also—up a few steps to the living room, or across the lower foyer to the kitchen steps.

Storage space is plentiful in B-79. All the bedrooms have one or more large closets; linen closets are convenient to both bedrooms; both foyers have handy coat closets; the kitchen has a spacious broom closet; there is a storage closet in the garage and bonus storage space beneath the circular stair on the lower level.

B-79 Statistics

Four-bedroom sunken ranch with two bathrooms, family room, attached single car garage, deck porch adjoining both living and dining rooms on upper level, two terraces on lower level.

Dimensions are 44 feet five inches wide and 25 feet four inches deep. Upper level contains 1,097 square feet of living area; lower level 803 square feet excluding garage and utility area.

FOR WORN ASBESTOS CEMENT

Asbestos cement products which have eroded through years of exposure require special treatment before they can be painted. The loose surface dust should be removed by vigorous wire brushing and the surface thoroughly washed. If the erosion is particularly severe, a special pretreatment is required with a masonry conditioner obtainable from your paint dealer who will also tell you the right kind of paint to use on the asbestos cement.

Range With Built-In Appearance

HOME BUILDERS and families intent on remodeling are discovering a new electric range that fits their needs precisely — a free-standing model that looks built in.

An electric manufacturers association points out that this new electric range combines the advantages of both built-in and free-standing models:

1. It provides the smooth built-in look that adds to kitchen beauty and efficiency.
2. It fits in with virtually any kitchen design and provides a compact cooking center.
3. It can go along when the family moves since it isn't a permanent part of the kitchen.
4. It can be installed at low cost

The earliest recognized inhabitants of North America are Folsom Man and Sandia Man in the United States and Tepepan Man in Mexico. They go back 10,000 to 20,000 years.

with a minimum of carpentry or cabinetry. These features, plus other advantages of electric cooking — cleanliness, speed, automation, better meals with less effort — make this new model something to be considered when kitchen remodeling is part of a family's future.

Maple Trees Have Their Own Woes

By George Abraham

MAPLE TROUBLES—Home-owners who have planted maples are distressed to find that these stately trees also have their own woes. What you see and read about maples should not discourage you from planting these fine ornamentals.

In the first place, not all maples whose leaves have scorched or dropped are diseased. I've had many complaints recently from gardeners who tell us their maple leaves have an ugly burning along the edges.

Most of this is a "physiological" trouble, that is, neither insect nor disease, but an environmental problem. In areas where spring growth has been lush, maples send out lots of tender foliage in wet seasons more than usual.

When a good hot day comes along, accompanied by a drying wind, many leaves start to shrivel or char because they cannot get water fast enough from the soil. In other words, the leaves give off more moisture than the roots can pump to the tree. Result: leaves develop a scorch and drop to the ground. This is just a way for nature to balance water loss with water intake.

Leaf scorch is usually on the youngest, tenderest foliage at ends of branches, can be on young trees, middle-aged trees and older ones alike.

When a branch or two suddenly wilts, this is a different thing, especially when leaves yellow off, turn brown and do not drop. This usually is verticillium wilt, due to a soil-borne fungus.

You can tell wilt with this simple test: Saw through a thin stained ring either green, blue-green or brownish in color, telltale sign of a fungus. Saw off wilted branches and burn. No chemical treatment is known for verticillium wilt.

And I might add that discoloration of the sapwood is not always positive proof of verticillium. Tree diseases should be handled by tree experts because they have the know-how and the equipment.

GROUND IVY, A CURSE — Ground ivy, Gill-over-the-ground (Nepeta hederacea) is a lawn weed with rounded, scalloped leaves, creeping, 4 sided stems, and small purplish 2-lipped flowers. It has a slight minty odor, grows fast and will take over an entire lawn while you're sleeping.

CONTROL — Here's a tough pest to fight! It takes repeated doses of weedkillers to knock it out. To me, handpulling and raking is still the only way you can get the best of ground ivy, as we mentioned before.

Has anyone learned to master this aggressive ornamental nuisance? Please write and tell me.

Question Box

Question of the Week: F. K. of Gilbert — "We bought some hybrid snapdragons and they grew nicely until last week when they developed a blight of some sort. They have a chocolate-like spotting on the leaves (especially undersides), and infected leaves seem to dry up. What can be done to fix it?"

Your snaps have a rust disease. The brown powdery pustules on the lower leaf surfaces are tell-tale signs.

There are several ornamentals which are susceptible to rusts, and these include pines-hollyhocks, beans, asters, junipers, to name a few. Snapdragons rust seems to be worse in cool, wet seasons, although you can find rust in hot dry areas as well.

Control consists of using rust-resistant varieties. Also dust the plants with zineb, or spray, using 1 tablespoon of 50% grade to a gal. of water. Apply weekly and thoroughly, covering lower surfaces of leaves, as well as the top surfaces.

In other words, try to cover both top and bottom leaf surfaces. Sulfur dusted on plants does a pretty fair job controlling rust also.

When snapdragons suddenly wilt, even though they have good care, then you should pull up the plants and burn them to avoid spreading verticillium disease.

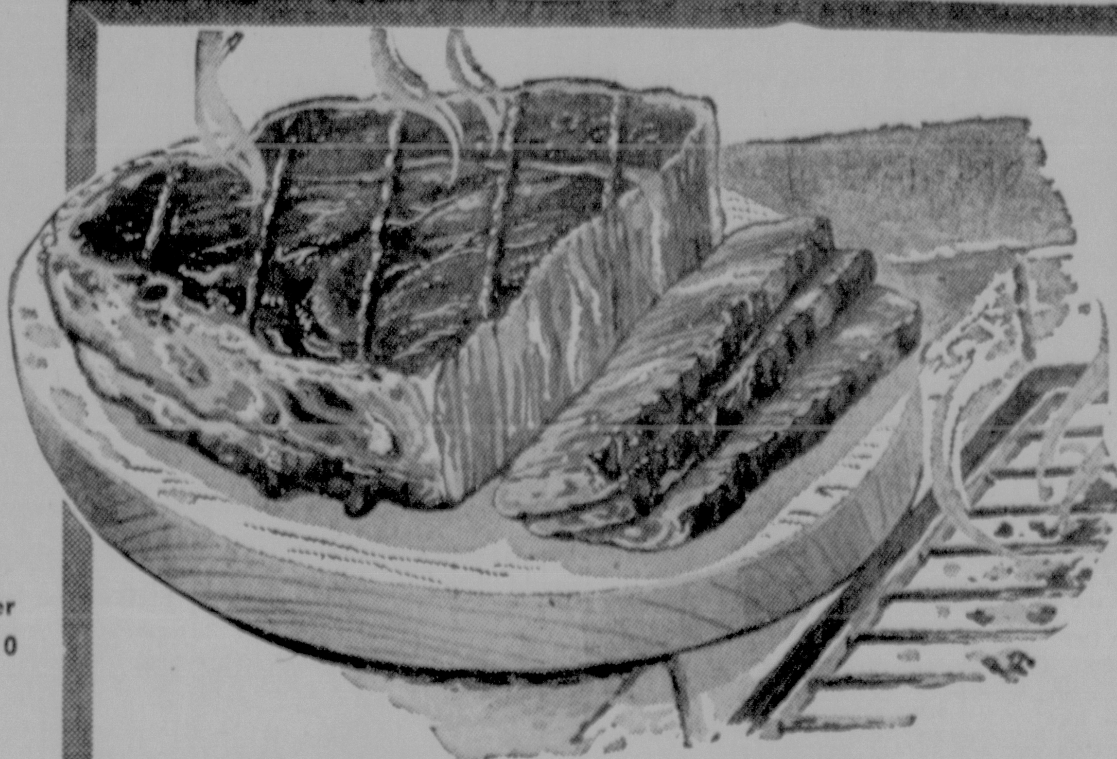

Circular spots with ash-white centers means anthracnose, another snapdragon killer. Dust or spray with zineb, as for rust.

C. R. of Long Pond — "What causes our spearmint to get such brown spots. Is there a non-poisonous spray to use?"

Spearmint gets the tarnished plant bug, a villain which causes sieve-like spots in the leaves. No non-toxic spray is available but you can use plastic bags over the plants to keep the insects from spotting the leaves. The type you receive from dry cleaners make an ideal tent for keeping out insects.

U. S. Handed Propaganda Maul By Reds

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst
Communist repressive measures against the unhappy people of East Germany have handed the United States a propaganda maul with which she intends to pound the fingers of the Soviets every time they reach for political support among the world's still-uncommitted nations.

The new demonstration of Soviet lack of concern for the working people, whom they once pretended to represent as the entrepreneurs of class war, fits right into an already-operating U. S. propaganda program.

It fits the new Kennedy administration emphasis on Soviet insincerity regarding the self-determination which it champions with words among the uncommitted, but denies for Eastern Europe.

Blitting Refugee Story

The Voice of America and other propaganda media are hitting the East German refugee story hard around the world. Interviews with refugees are being distributed everywhere. Full-length information is being offered for magazine use. Motion pictures are going into distribution.

Heavy emphasis is on making the story familiar throughout Latin America and Africa, where self-determination is an always-current topic.

The machinery for the campaign was already at work when the refugee story reached its peak Sunday, having been developed as a part of a specific U. S. Information Agency program designed to stress five key themes:

1—Soviet abrogation of its international agreements regarding Berlin as a revelation of its intentions and a threat to all freedom and all world order.

2—Soviet insincerity on a nuclear test ban, having refused concrete Western offers after trying to gain propaganda profits from her original proposals.

3—The Soviet threat to an effective United Nations and her indifference toward the interests to small nations in the only organization through which they can make themselves heard and their policies effective.

4—Soviet opposition to free choice among nations, and the demonstration of her interest in neutrality solely as a way station on the road to Communist takeover.

5—The positive emphasis of the United States on economic and social development for emerging nations, without payment in kind through subservience.

Late Rally Pulls Market To Upside

NEW YORK (AP)—A late rally by rails pulled an irregular stock market to the upside Wednesday as attention in Wall Street began to veer away from the Berlin crisis and to the strong advance in the American business cycle.

An estimated $1.4 billion was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in The Associated Press average.

Rails were virtually alone, as a group, as they moved higher in early afternoon.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the day with a gain of 2.02 at 718.20.

The AP 60-stock average rose 1.00 to 253.60 with industrials up .60, rails up 1.50 and utilities up .50.

Of 1,275 issues traded, 579 advanced and 666 declined. New highs for the year totaled 34 and new lows 15.

Boistered Averages

While the list as a whole was only raggedly higher, gains by some of the pivotal rails bolstered the averages. At the same time, speculative enthusiasm was reflected by the list of 15 most active stocks: 11 rose, 2 fell and 2 were unchanged.

Volume improved to 3.43 million shares from Tuesday's 3.32 million.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange also were generally higher. Volume was 1.16 million shares compared with 1.24 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U. S. government bonds were slightly higher.

Modern Version Of Loaves, Fishes

A modern dietary lesson from the loaves and the fishes, a possible clue to mental illness in rabbit lungs, and a bottle that bleeds in self-defense are subjects for science at work.

Loaves and Fishes
The biblical story of the loaves and the fishes seems to have a modern counterpart off the east coast of Africa.

A small fish, about the size of a sunfish, though slightly slimmer, is revolutionizing the diet of natives on the island of Malagasy. The fish, called tilapia melanopleura, was introduced some 10 years ago to buttress a diet that included rice, fruit, a little honey, but little meat. It became well-established in rivers and lakes, and the government has built some 80,000 village fishing ponds. Now fishing is popular and productive. The average adult catches 11 pounds a day. Even a child can catch four pounds.

Curiously, one member of the tilapia family is reputedly the fish which the Bible says Christ miraculously multiplied to feed the throng attracted by his preaching.

Clues from Rabbits
Mental health researchers have found a strange chemical in the lungs of rabbits—an enzyme that can produce drugs that cause hallucinations. The enzyme uses as its raw materials natural compounds found in blood.

The drugs produced are the same that are found in snuff made from plants by the Indians of Haiti. Called cohoba, the snuff has been used by the Indians to enable them to communicate with unseen powers.

Other researchers reported recently that they were able to change the behavior of schizophrenic mental patients by feeding them certain chemical forerunners of hallucination drugs. All of this suggests that there may be some chemical change in the body of mental patients that causes their mental aberrations.

Blood Bothers
When the Mexican bean beetle is bothered or molested, he literally bleeds. Now it appears he may do it to defend himself.

The strange habit, which he shares with certain other bugs, involves releasing droplets of blood from his legs.

When ants attack the beetles and the droplets of blood get on them, they abruptly back away and begin intensely to clean themselves. When the blood coagulates it becomes sticky and the ants are virtually immobilized. It sometimes takes them more than an hour to recover.

Weather Outlook For 5 Days

Extended forecasts for Aug. 17 through Aug. 21

That's what happened to lion trainer Richard E. Flynn, 47, of St. Louis, Mo., and King Kado, a 160-pound lion cub of 16 months. Flynn was denounced in Magistrate's Court Wednesday as a publicity hound and sentenced to 30 days in the city workhouse. King Kado already had been sent to the zoo for safekeeping.

Already Confined
And, as a matter of fact, Flynn already was in jail. He had been unable to post a $500 bond when he was arrested Aug. 11 for a second time on charges of bringing a wild animal to town and leaving him unattended.

Flynn pleaded guilty before Magistrate Louis A. Cioffi, but he also pleaded that King Kado was so peaceable he wouldn't snap at a butterfly.

The trainer added that he was accustomed to leaving the lion cub alone in his car on travels around the country to county fair exhibitions and so forth. Not a single hair of a single human has been harmed yet, Flynn said.

Maybe so, retorted the magistrate. But he snapped that he had to be guided by what the average citizen would think on seeing a loose lion and anybody with good sense would consider it a dangerous animal.

Flynn first got into trouble Aug. 8 when he left King Kado in his car in a parking lot while he went off to lunch. He returned to find hordes of police, a rope net over the car, and hundreds of gaping spectators.

Did It Again

Despite a warning, Flynn did the same thing at a garage again Aug. 11. And again he returned to find more cops and more trouble. Attendants at the parking lot, an garage also wound up with various charges against him, although one pleaded Flynn had convinced him the lion was only an overgrown dog.

And when Flynn gets out of the workhouse, he'll have to answer additional counts of cruelty to an animal—for leaving King Kado in the car in a hot sun without ventilation or water—and violation of the city health code.

Gets Bid For Stationary Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hughes Aircraft Corp. of Culver City, Calif., has been chosen to build the first "stationary" type communications satellite for the National Aeronautics and space Administration.

The 50-pound satellite will be launched into an orbit 22,300 miles above the earth. Rotating at the same speed as the earth, it will appear to hover over a given area.

Costs $4 Million—
The cost of at least three flight units was estimated at about $4 million. The first launching is scheduled for late next year.

NASA gave the spacecraft the name of Project Syncom, describing a communications satellite in synchronous rotation with the earth.

The project takes its place along with two other NASA programs for active communications satellites, its own Project Relay orbiter being developed by Radio Corp. of America, and the privately financed American Telephone & Telegraph Co. satellite.

These two types of craft will test communications relays at relatively low altitudes, up to 3,000 miles.

A Senate Small Business subcommittee heard testimony last week that "low-altitude" communications satellites may not be worth the cost because their range will be limited and their lifetime will be short.

Four of the high-altitude "hovering" satellites placed 90 degrees apart would provide worldwide communications coverage for scores of years.

NASA said the orbiting Syncom satellite would move in an elongated figure-eight pattern 33 degrees north and south of the equator, over a given longitude near the U. S. East Coast.

Thus, unlike the true "stationary" satellite—the military Advent spacecraft now under development—the Syncom craft will waver considerably to the north and south while remaining on a constant latitude.

The plan is to boost it to a height of 22,300 miles by a three-stage Delta rocket, and then inject it into the desired orbit by an additional rocket attached to the spacecraft.

NASA said the project would provide information bearing on the project Advent satellite.

Advent, a relative monster at about 2,000 pounds, also will orbit at 22,300 miles to demonstrate the feasibility of a secure, global military communications system using three equidistant satellites.

READING, Pa. (AP)—Leroy C. Yost, a 54-year-old construction worker lost his life yesterday when a sewer excavation collapsed and buried him.

Yost, of suburban Pennside, was employed by the Reading Branch of the United Gas Improvement Co., and was inspecting work done by the Alcorn Utilities Inc., for his firm.

Yost was trapped by a landfill in a pit he was inspecting. An earth mover was used and workers shoveled the fallen soil in a vain effort to reach Yost. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Reading Hospital.

Portland Bible School Ends Session

TWO WEEKS of Daily Vacation Bible School in the Portland area has been concluded. The Bible School was a cooperative program between the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Parents' Night for the school was held on Thursday night at the Portland Baptist Church, at which time each of the departments presented a short program that showed what they had learned.

The theme of this year's studies was "Living by God's Time."

Those participating in the program were:

Nursery Department: Bonnie

Singer, Kathy Fields, Christy

Predmore, and Leroy Price.

The Beginners Department put on a little playlet, Philip Forney was the father; Susie Melnick was the mother; and the children were

Douglas Ambruck, Kathy Pred-

more, Claudette Stine, Neil Brodt,

Barbara Staples, Leanna Dunk,

and Cheryl Golden.

Primary Department: Kim Potter, Kay Ann Young, Jean Ann

Ambruck, Gail Ann LaBar, Carol

Nangle, Erica Shoemaker, and

Mary Jean Beck recited memory verses and explained what they did and learned during the two weeks. The rest of the Primary

Department sang songs in a group.

Junior Department — Mary

Encke, Melvin Forney, Denise

Nangle, Jeffra Predmore, Virgia-

la Benn, Alfred Miller, Larry

Fields, Terry Lee Strunk, and

Clyde recited the Beatitudes and

Marsha Stiles the Books of the Bible.

Junior High — Lennie Wildrick,

John Predmore, David Forney,

and John Felker, presented a right price." Of course, details as to the "right price" were not given.

How does one determine the right price for stocks of mutual fund management companies?

A. Back to me. To date, it's been almost all pure guesswork. If you find a good formula, let me know. We'll both get rich.

A mutual fund management company is an outfit that provides either investment advisory service or underwriting services (in some cases both) to one or more mutual funds.

If a management company is an investment adviser, it collects investment advisory fees from the fund or funds. If a management company is an underwriter, it collects part of the commissions on the sale of shares of the fund or funds.

The setup of management companies varies all over the lot. No two are exactly alike. Because of the growth of the mutual fund business, most management companies have also shown rapid growth in both total business and profits in the postwar period.

The stocks of some (but, by no means, all) mutual fund management companies are available

Q. My husband feels that buying a new car every year keeps his investment good and, in the long run, costs less than repairing an old car. I feel that, if we did not have to meet car financing payments each month, we could invest for our future. I have tried to interest him in investing by showing him your column. He says, "I'll bet Doyle trades in his car every fall, when the new models come out." Do you?

A. Your hubby and some automobile manufacturers may hate me for this. Our family car is a 1958 sedan. It's a wonderful car, in fine condition. We have no intention of trading it in for at least another year — maybe longer.

If we had to meet car payments, we would have less to invest. But, unlike your spouse, we are concerned about our future — not about keeping up with the latest low-slung, high-powered speedster parked in neighbor Jones's garage.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

little play which they had written themselves to show how God's knowledge differs from human knowledge.

The prelude for the program was played by Jean Encke on the piano and the offertory by Lennie Wildrick on the organ.

The enrollment of the school was 90 and the attendance averaged 80. The superintendents of the departments were: Nursery — Mrs. Roy Predmore and Mrs. Jean Ann Capone; Beginners — Mrs. Robert Farleigh; Primary — Mrs. Hiram Delp; Juniors — Mrs. William Wisk; and Junior High — Rev. Charles Cummings. Assisting these superintendents were 15 other teachers and helpers.
